

Heads Sore Today On Minstrel Island

MINSTREL ISLAND, B.C. (CP)—Donald MacKay headed for the pub yesterday with the announced intention of getting drunk. Almost the entire population of 150 on the island north of Campbell River joined him.

MacKay, a rigger for Hillis Logging Company, won $56,000 with an Irish sweepstake ticket on Fiddlers, second horse in the Epsom Derby Wednesday.

Trade

Don't Split NATO

LONDON (CP) — The Canadian delegation to the Atlantic congress opening here Friday warns that the development of a restrictively-oriented free trade area in Europe could easily lead to a split between Canada and some of the NATO allies.

The concern was expressed in a number of working papers submitted to the congress—a six-day conference of roughly 600 delegates from NATO countries convened to draft the outlines of future policies for the Atlantic alliance.

"ROSY GLOW"

Arthur J. R. Smith, director of research of the Private Planning Association of Canada, and George F. Delany of the aluminum union suggest in their papers that there has been "too much rosy glow" about the possible effects on North America of the common market.

They foresee the danger that European community may tend to foster regional trade at the expense of wider trading arrangements.

"SOLIDARITY"

Economist Lawrence E. Kindt, Conservative member of Parliament for MacLeod, Alta., expresses the hope in another paper that Western European nations striving for economic integration will take steps to ensure that their initiative in this field "will be consistent with NATO solidarity."

Smith and Delany warn of dangers for Canada and the United States in the possible development of discriminatory trading arrangements between Common Market countries and selected ones outside—possibly even members of the Soviet bloc.

FLUORIDATION VOTE LIKELY AT NEXT CIVIC ELECTIONS

Chamber to Press Councils to Act

By TERRY HAMMOND

Evidence was strong here yesterday that ratepayers in the four incorporated areas which make up Greater Victoria will vote on the burning issue of fluoridation in December.

Public affairs committee of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce will approach the councils of Oak Bay, Saanich, Esquimalt and Victoria soon to learn whether they will agree to place fluoridation referendums before their electorates this year.

A quick poll of some key members of the four councils late yesterday showed that if ratepayers show a reasonable degree of enthusiasm to vote on the controversial issue they will definitely get the chance.

And the Colonist learned from Ronald A. Upward, chief commissioner for the Greater Victoria Water District, that fluoridated water could be flowing through the mains within 18 months if ratepayers give the measure the 60 per cent approval it needs to pass.

$100,000 Installation

Cost of an installation to fluoridate the water supply for the district's 40,000 consumers would run to $100,000.

Operating cost, including retirement of debt and payment of interest, would run about $30,000 a year, or less than $1 per consumer.

Eric Mallett, chairman of the public affairs committee of the Chamber of Commerce, said his group has been studying the dental health proposal for some time with a view to asking the four councils to place the matter before the ratepayers.

Only one of the key council figures reached yesterday was less than enthusiastic about holding a referendum, and he agreed it will be done if ratepayers ask for it.

Reeve George Murdoch of Oak Bay said he didn't agree with the theory of mass medication.

"Just because I need a dose of castor oil is no reason why you should have to take a dose of castor oil, too," he said.

Attack on Earwigs

He said he thought the fluoridation movement might be a hidden flanking attack on the earwig population.

"Maybe they are trying to kill the earwigs—sodium fluoride is what they kill earwigs with," he said.

But he added, "If the people of Oak Bay express a desire to vote on it, we would let them do it."

Victoria's acting mayor Arthur Dowell said of a public referendum, "That's the only way to settle the thing."

He said he did not believe the council as a whole would take a firm position on what the outcome of a public vote on fluoridation should be, "but some councillors would probably take a stand."

"Personally, I've heard so much for and against it, I don't know what to think," he added.

Acting reeve George Austin of Saanich said "council would have no alternative" to placing a referendum before the people "if such a request came from the ratepayers and the other councils."

No Objection to Vote

Reeve A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt said he wouldn't have any objection to a referendum if public opinion demands one.

"The experts tell us we should have fluoridation," he said.

"I am certainly swayed by what the dentists say about it, but I can't say whether I would vote for it or against it."

"But if there is to be a referendum in December there should be some indication from the electorate fairly soon if people are to be able to vote intelligently," he added.

Oak Bay is the only one of the four incorporated areas which could go it alone on fluoridation if the move was blocked in one of the other municipalities, the water district commissioner said.

Oak Bay is fed by a single main, but the other three municipalities are connected by a complex network of lines which would mean they could not fluoridate independently.

Boy Catches Winged Cat

PINEVILLE, W. Va. (AP)

—A 15-year-old boy has nabbed an odd freak—a cat with a wing-like growth.

Douglas Shelton said he was in the woods the other day when he noticed the animal tread by a dog.

The female cat has two wings, each about six inches long. They appear to be boneless but evidently cartilage gives them their shape.

Railways Need Trade

Senator Urges Ban On Freight Trucks

OTTAWA (CP)—A Saskatchewan Progressive Conservative senator said Thursday all freight business in Canada should go to the railways and that trucks should be banned from highways.

Senator Ralph Horner, a farmer, said in the Senate the railways are necessary in the Canadian economy and that they would be in a healthy position if they received all the freight business.

The railways should be given the freight business that rightfully belongs to them "and the highways should be left for the purpose for which they were designed—private passenger car travel."

'Friendship' Visit Paid By Nikita

Cancer Society

Tobacco War Declared

BOSTON (UPI)—The American Cancer Society yesterday voted to wage a massive anti-smoking campaign, aimed mostly at teenagers.

The society's board of directors called for more vigorous efforts to "bring to the attention of physicians and the public—and particularly teenagers—facts about cancer and smoking."

Dr. Howard C. Taylor, chairman of the society's special committee on tobacco and cancer, reported that the society's staff had been directed to prepare plans and estimates of costs for a "total educational effort toward modification of the smoking habit in a community."

PREPARE STUDIES

The society's staff also was directed to prepare studies of smokers and non-smokers and "those physiologic and psychological, and social factors responsible for the initiation, continuation, and cessation of smoking."

In New York, the chairman of the tobacco industry, research committee said the anti-smoking campaign was a "one-sided propaganda effort."

Montreal Councillor:

Police Protect Car Theft Ring.

MONTREAL (UPI)—A Montreal city councillor charged yesterday that a large size car theft ring is operating under police protection because of the fast reappearance of his own vehicle, 15 hours after it was stolen.

Jean Meunier, in making the charge, said he believed the gang was operating under police protection because his own white Cadillac was recovered 15 hours after it was stolen, painted black and with all serial numbers removed.

He claimed members of the police stolen auto squad told him that they called the gang and made them understand that the Cadillac in question belonged to a city father.

He quoted members of the squad as saying that they told the gang that if the car was not returned "we'd book the whole gang for the weekend."

Meunier said he was convinced the only reason he got the car back was because he was a city councillor.

An investigation of the charges was ordered.

CHANCELLOR ADENAUER . . . changes mind

Adenauer To Stay

BONN (Reuters) — Konrad Adenauer intends to remain West German chancellor instead of becoming president later in the summer, a party official announced last night.

The chancellor's change of mind, following his decision two months ago to leave the presidency, landed like a bombshell in the political scene.

Informed sources said Adenauer's move was to keep the government from splitting in a fight over his successor.

Forestry's Reply to IWA

Export Difficulties 'Tower Above All'

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's forest management, arguing before a conciliation board why the International Woodworkers of America shouldn't be granted a 20 per cent wage increase, said Thursday its main problem is that of "remaining competitive in export markets."

Forest Industrial Relations, speaking for 138 lumber firms in the dispute, said the export market problem "towers above all others in absolute pre-eminence."

The board's hearings began Thursday less than two weeks before the June 16 expiry date of the present contract governing the 26,500 coast lumber workers.

The union's wage demands would bring the basic rate in the industry to $2.06 an hour from $1.72.

FIR argues that other industries can pass along labor costs to domestic consumers. But the lumber industry can't, because it's dependent on export markets.

The union had argued that world prices for Canadian lumber have increased and show an upward trend.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (AP) — Students blamed for touching off riots that claimed 23 lives in Guayaquil were hailed Thursday for switching to the government's side to suppress looting.

Meanwhile, in Managua, the Nicaraguan government put an economic brand on the five-day-old revolution, saying that invaders were financed by "local capitalists."

At the same time a government crackdown on merchants appeared to have broken the back of a general strike.

Stop the Ambulance! Cries Logger —Get Me a Couple of Hamburgers

They make 'em tough in the Jordan River logging camps. "Man, I'm hungry," said tree feller Emil Bartanus after being carried by stretcher seven miles out from the woods where his leg was broken in a logging accident. And then he begged the West Coast Ambulance stop outside his home at Jordan River so his wife could give him a couple of hamburgers before continuing on to Royal Jubilee Hospital in Victoria for treatment. A spokesman for Canadian Puget Sound Logging Co. said last night that it appeared Bartanus had slipped after falling a tree and that the tree flipped back against him. The firm was notified of the accident at 4:10 p.m. "It didn't take us long to get in to him, but it took several hours carrying him out," said the spokesman.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Yesterday I quoted the views of a real estate salesman who put forward a plan for turning the real estate business inside out.

He suggested the creation of a central appraisal and listing bureau. At such a bureau, photographs and descriptions of houses would be kept on file, labelled with the appraised value as well as the vendor's asking price.

The principals would deal directly with one another, employing only a lawyer. The buyer of a house would pay the listing and appraisal office a flat fee of $50 after the deal had been concluded.

William Bailey, president of Victoria Real Estate Board, and some other officials of the board and of the Multiple Listings Bureau, deny the statements that my friend made to support his plan for a "real estate supermarket."

They say that there are dangers in principals of a real estate transaction dealing with one another directly, because the laymen (1) have no knowledge of market conditions, and (2) lack the legal requirements of the law as it relates to real estate.

Trained real estate men are best equipped to handle these matters, they declare.

My correspondent claimed that there are too many real estate salesmen scrambling for the existing business.

"In the end, the market is made by the buyer and seller," Mr. Bailey replied. "We don't fix a price and we don't get a price beyond the market. Free competition is to the advantage of the client."

"If we were to have a closed corporation of a few agents we would be breaking the law regarding restraint of trade."

He said the salesman's commission of 5 per cent (under multiple listing, a total of 7 per cent) was a reasonable fee. Brokers of other services or commodities charged 10 per cent or more.

No Evidence of Distrust

"There is no evidence of public distrust in the real estate business," he said. He felt that public trust of the Multiple Listings Bureau was proven by the large numbers of people using its services.

Last February, the latest month for which figures are available, sales through Victoria's Multiple Listings Bureau totalled $717,793. Forty-three per cent of properties listed were sold. The average price was 97.2 per cent of the average asking price.

No figures were available for the total amount of real estate handled through firms that did not subscribe to multiple listing or the amount of real estate sold by direct dealing of seller with buyer.

"The so-called supermarket plan for handling real estate has been tried here once already, and it failed," Mr. Bailey said. He acknowledged, however, that the plan was not tried in exactly the same form that my correspondent suggested.

"Service to the client is the Saw Need for Control

"Real estate men saw the need for some sort of control. . . . After years of hard work, the government introduced a licensing scheme. . . ."

He said that real estate men had put forward a set of educational and financial qualifications, to which all new salesmen now must conform.

"The three boards acquired the services of an outstanding man who was a graduate of Cambridge and the London School of Economics, and a practising estate manager. We looked all over North America for a man of the right qualifications. Now he has been appointed professor of the faculty of commerce at UBC with special reference to real estate matters."

"His course will be inserted in the commerce degree, for men wanting to major in real estate."

"Everyone must have at least four months' special training at UBC before he can qualify to sit for an examination."

"The real estate business is carefully approaching a professional standard. . . ."

Every real estate salesman sometimes meets a client who insists on setting the value of his house higher than it really is. Some salesmen finally accept that price, or something close to it, and try to sell at that price.

My correspondent had said that "some" salesmen persuade people to sell their homes, and quote prices far above the real value.

Mr. Bailey denied that this was a common practice, and said that prices were set by the demands of the market.

"There are in every business people who don't do as they should do," he said. "But the real estate board is doing its best to see that no one can hold a licence unless he's a competent, responsible, trained person."

Killer's Brother Freed

Witness to Murder Acquitted by Jury

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—John Popoff, 27, was acquitted Thursday afternoon by an Assize Court jury of the death of Lawrence Douglas Garrett, 35, last October.

The jury deliberated one hour. No emotion was shown by Popoff. His wife, sister, Larry Popoff's wife and John Popoff's mother cried quietly.

When told that he was free to go by Mr. Justice H. J. Sullivan, he said, "Thank you, My Lord and gentlemen of the jury."

Popoff was accused of the murder of Garrett in a lonely field near Kinnaird. His brother, Larry Larian Popoff, 23, was convicted of the beating death last week and sentenced to death Aug. 18.

In his charge to the jury, Mr. Justice Sullivan said that in his opinion Popoff was not guilty of murder. "I cannot imagine any purpose for sending this accused to the gallows."

NOT VALID

"The Crown contends that the failure of the accused to intervene in the assault of Garrett by Larry Popoff made the accused a party to the offence. I cannot find this argument valid and I must instruct you to reject it."

"It is not a crime for a person to watch an assault, whether it eventually is murder or not."

CIRCUMSTANTIAL

"For John Popoff to be found guilty of murder it must be found that he aided or abetted Larry Popoff in the murder of Garrett; or that the pair had a common purpose."

He emphasized that the Crown's case was based almost entirely on circumstantial evidence.

Mess Boy Guilty Of Manslaughter In Choking Death

VANCOUVER (CP)—Constantin Dumitru, 39-year-old ship's mess boy, Thursday was found guilty on a reduced charge of manslaughter in the May 7 strangling of a 43-year-old club waiter.

Dumitru, originally charged with murder in connection with the death of Robert White, will be sentenced at the end of the assizes. The maximum sentence for manslaughter is 20 years minus up to five years off for good behavior.

The Assize Court jury deliberated for one hour and 20 minutes before returning its verdict.

White's body was found in his west-end apartment. He had been strangled with the sleeve of a shirt.

Dumitru was arrested in Honolulu March 20 aboard the Finnish freighter Korsholma and returned to Vancouver.

Dumitru testified at his trial that he tied a shirt around White's neck to stop bleeding from his nose and mouth that had started during a fight he had with White after the waiter made homosexual advances.

Defense counsel Harry Rankin said while it did not seem reasonable for Dumitru to tie a shirt around White's neck and run, it was understandable for a frightened stranger in the country.

It was normal for a simple man like Dumitru to be shocked by what he would consider indecent actions against him.

Crown prosecutor E. J. C. Stewart alleged White was murdered in the course of a robbery. He said Dumitru's shirt was carefully taken off—no buttons were torn off—and that the shirt sleeve may have been placed around White's neck to keep him quiet.

Polls in Pubs

To Decide

Issue in U.K.

LONDON (Reuters)—Millions in Britain will be asked in August to vote on this earth-shaking issue:

Which is best—draught or bottled beer?

At present Britain consumes 540,000,000 gallons of draught beer and 360,000,000 gallons of bottled beer annually.

Thousands of bars will become polling booths between Aug. 10 and 20 when the electorate—anyone over 18 years of age—pays its money and makes its choice.

The election, sponsored by the Brewers' Society to publicize beer, got off to a vigorous start this week with a flood of billboard posters, p.m.s and television commercials.

That Goes for Husbands, Too

Men Make Her Sick —That's Her Trouble

LONDON (UPI)—The case of the woman who is allergic to men—all men, her husband included—continued in an appeal court yesterday.

Before the three appeal court judges was a case involving Mrs. Jean Lilley, 32, of Hull.

Her attorney told the court Mrs. Lilley had an "invincible repugnance" to men, so great that the very sound of her husband's voice made her physically sick.

A chance meeting in the street with her husband once made her "very ill," attorney Rudolph Lyons said.

Doctors considered her condition incurable, and said her repugnance toward men was as real as any physical disability. Her "allergy" to men began after she had a baby five years ago, he said. She has kept to the company of women ever since.

"It is agreed that if she returned to her husband the effect on her health would be disastrous," Lyons said.

Mrs. Lilley sued her husband for maintenance after a divorce. Two Hull courts denied her claim on the grounds that her husband had done no wrong.

She was appealing these lower-court rulings and seeking support funds from her former husband.

Moon Mice Dead

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI)—America's four "moon mice" plunged to a fiery death within minutes after being fired toward space aboard the Discoverer III satellite, the air force said yesterday.

The 1,600-pound "mouse-nik" apparently reached satellite speed of 18,000 miles an hour and proper height of at least 140 miles above the earth. But it did not have the proper angle of travel to enter the planned polar orbit.

Howard Green Takes Over External Affairs

OTTAWA (UPI)—Lanky Howard Green, a quiet strongman of the Conservative government, who dislikes travel, yesterday was named Canada's new external affairs minister.

The 63-year-old political veteran, works minister since the Conservative government took office two years ago, was sworn in as foreign affairs chief by Governor-General Vincent Massey at a brief morning ceremony.

Green succeeds the late Sidney Smith who died March 17. Prime Minister Diefenbaker has held the portfolio on an acting basis since then.

Diefenbaker told newsmen Green would continue as acting works minister as well until his department's estimates were through the Commons. Indications were that the prime minister would make no more appointments until after the end of the current session.

RESHUFFLE LATER?
It is expected he will reshuffle his entire cabinet later in the year.

Green, an amiable teetotaler, takes over the prized but difficult external affairs post with little practical experience in the field. He has not been overseas since the First World War when he served with the Canadian army in France.

He is regarded, however, as an excellent administrator and many believe that this was the main factor behind his appointment. The general consensus was that Diefenbaker, almost certain to make the major policy decisions himself, was looking for a man to put the department's administration on a sounder basis.

MAIN AIMS
The new minister told the Commons his main aims would be to seek international co-operation among all nations and to "do my part to keep Canada on the high level she was placed by my predecessors."

In brief comments, Diefenbaker, opposition leader Lester B. Pearson and H. W. Herridge (CCF, Kootenay West) offered their congratulations.

The prime minister said he was certain the hope of the Canadian people was that Green would "maintain in the future his level of achievement in the past."

SUPPORT PLEDGED
Pearson, a former external affairs minister himself and saluted by Green as "one of Canada's great statesmen," said the opposition would give the new minister its full support on any forward-looking measures he might initiate.

HOWARD GREEN
... new office at 63

Humor Replaces His Dourness

OTTAWA (CP)—Tall, spare Howard Charles Green is lively proof that a man can change his outlook on life even when he's fairly well on in years.

What changed Mr. Green—or, at least, that side of him which the public sees—was a government portfolio after 22 years on the opposition benches in the Commons.

The bespectacled Mr. Green was dour and unhumorous when in opposition. He used to drive the Liberals nearly frantic with his unrelenting curiosity about the most minute details of government business.

A delegate at the 1956 convention which chose Mr. Diefenbaker as Progressive Conservative leader said of Mr. Green after a long private session of a resolutions committee: "That man Green, he'll even try to split a comma."

The industrious, dogged Vancouver lawyer was once described by former Liberal trade minister C. D. Howe as a perambulating prognosticator of gloom who stalked the halls of Parliament with Bible in one hand and stiletto in the other.

Nobody would dream of applying this description today. Mr. Green is a changed man, with an expansive good humor that disarms the opposition.

When the Liberals and the CCF criticize in the Commons, Mr. Green says with a broad grin: "You're just whining. Believe me, because I know something about whining. I used to be about the best whiner in the House."

Mr. Green has been a "Diefenbaker man" for years and holds the prime minister in the highest esteem.

His loyalty to the prime minister is fully reciprocated. He is senior member of the cabinet and acting prime minister when Mr. Diefenbaker is away.

Mr. Green was elected to the Commons in 1935, on his first try and has been re-elected six times since. He first represented Vancouver South and has been member for Vancouver Quadra since 1949.

He was married in 1923 and has two sons, Lewis, of nearby Manotick, Ont., and John, of Agassiz, B.C., former telegraph editor of The Daily Colonist.

A widower for several years, Mr. Green married the former Donna Kerr, of Duncan, B.C., in 1956.

LONDON (Reuters)—More than 200,000 pressmen, typesetters and other printing workers throughout Britain yesterday banned all overtime in a bid to enforce claims for higher wages and shorter hours.

Good Value at $9,000,000

BY calling for tenders for the construction of a ferry terminal near Point Roberts the provincial government has put an end to conjecture on the possibility that British Columbia might find itself next year in possession of two multi-million-dollar ferries with no place to go.

In this project the government put the cart ahead of the horse by committing the Province to the purchase of two new ships before a port had been found for them to land passengers at the mainland end of the run. That problem has now been solved by the selection of a place called Teasawassen as the site for a man-made port expected to add $3,000,000 to the initial cost of inaugurating a new ferry connection between Sidney and the mainland.

Even in these days $3,000,000 is a lot of money to have to add to the original optimistic estimate of what establishment of a fast ferry service would cost. It means that the first guess has had to be doubled or more than doubled, for construction of suitable ships has turned out to be a good deal more costly than the government had anticipated when it announced the intention to give Victoria a more direct route to the mainland.

Nevertheless even at $9,000,000 —which is still only an estimate—the cost of this project is not too high in relation to the improved service ultimately to be provided. To begin with Victoria is entitled to a "highway" to Vancouver regardless of the geographical accident of the wide water gap. If that gap did not exist the cost of building a dry-land highway from the end of Saanich Peninsula to connect with the existing highways south of Vancouver would be many times $9,000,000. So also would be the cost of bridging the gap or tunnelling beneath it, if either were feasible.

Viewed in terms of distance and of road and bridge construction costs, the $3,000,000 for a terminal causeway and pier and the $9,000,000 or $10,000,000 for the project as a whole become much less formidable figures. Time also is an important element. The present hope is that the new ferries will be running by next summer. If this were a road, bridge or tunnel project it would be years before connection could be completed.

When these factors are taken into account the value which Victoria and the province as a whole will receive from what a first glance may look like an excessive outlay becomes more apparent.

A. Wide Role

THE official biography of the late King George VI disclosed that even in modern democratic days a constitutional monarch may play an influential part. He is not the absolute ruler of yore but he need not be a figurehead. He becomes the repository of much experience and knowledge, and because of the continuity of his regal position he can be of value to his ministers in the way of advice and judgment. In the case of King George there were numerous instances where his opinions were sought and the country benefited by the acceptance of his views.

Something of the sort may be reflected by a representative of the monarch in a Canadian province. In the case of B.C. the present incumbent of Government House has revealed that the role of a lieutenant-governor can be much wider than is commonly imagined. It is far from being a matter of laying cornerstones, opening functions, taking the salute, or any one of a score of other important but ornamental duties.

There is of course the social aspect of his office, but as Hon. Frank Ross told a Rotary Club audience in Vancouver this week, even that is not the all-embracing function of his post. He explained that his concept of incumbency includes not only "to provide a house of hospitality worthy of the province"—and with Mrs. Ross he has done this in splendid fashion—but also to try to play a useful part in the business and industrial well-being of the province.

Mr. Ross is a son of the soil who became a successful industrialist. Like the father of the Queen he represents he has absorbed much experience and lore in his journey through life. While keeping within the bounds of his constitutional propriety he is able therefore, with the quiet informative word in private conversation, to further the development of B.C. Many visitors on business bent receive the hospitality of Government House. They do not just talk with the lieutenant-governor about the weather. Mr. Ross has the opportunity to dilate on the assets and advantages of this province to prospective investors, and he accepts it.

This revelation of what can be the role of a lieutenant-governor is something fresh and unusual. It increases the stature and value of the office, which when appropriately filled as at present obviously can aid and contribute to the development and prosperity of B.C.

External Affairs Minister

APPOINTMENT of Hon. Howard Green as minister of external affairs will retain for British Columbia three portfolios held in the federal cabinet, including two of the most important—defence and foreign affairs—besides that of the ministry of justice. In selecting Mr. Green, an outstanding parliamentary veteran, the prime minister is giving preference to a colleague and personal friend who has been his chief lieutenant since the return of the administration a year ago. It will be noted that Mr. Green is to retain his House leadership, and will carry the public works portfolio until current estimates have been ratified. Eventually the works portfolio will need to be transferred.

Reasons for the choice of Mr. Green have been stated variously on Parliament Hill, but two considerations are apparent: Mr. Diefenbaker wants in the senior post a colleague whose utterances will neither be injudicious nor provocative, and who will work closely with him in an evident intention of retaining a close measure of control over Canada's foreign relations policy. Now in his seventh term in parliament, Mr. Green is unquestionably a politically safe choice. His retention simultaneously of House leadership indicates that his will be no world-roving mission. A native born British Columbian, Mr. Green is well known and well liked throughout the country.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, in announcing his choice, stated that this ended cabinet changes during the current session of parliament. The external affairs portfolio was opened in March last through the sudden death of Hon. Sidney Smith, a brilliant Canadian educationalist.

Interpreting the News

Latin America Ferment

By JOSEPH MACSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ACTS of violence in Nicaragua, Paraguay, Argentina and Peru are manifestations of a continuing revolution in Latin America, a continent of nearly 200,000,000 people.

Political and social change plus grinding economic problems are the roots of unrest below the Rio Grande. And the success of Fidel Castro's revolution in Cuba has had a tonic effect in the few countries where dictators remain.

Instability isn't surprising when it is remembered that Latin America is formed of 20 republics less than 150 years old, economically under-developed, with a population explosion and at various stages of a winning struggle for democracy. The situation is seen as made to order for Communist infiltration.

Currently, the most spectacular events are taking place in Nicaragua, where President Luis Somoza has been challenged by an actual—albeit small—attack by irregular forces from neighboring Costa Rica, a centre for anti-authoritarian elements since overthrowing its dictator in 1948.

Somoza inherited a dictatorial regime from his father, Gen. Anastasio Somoza, assassinated in 1956.

Six other Latin American dictators have been overthrown in the last five years.

Political affairs came to a boil at the beginning of this year when Cuba's dictator Fulgencio Batista fled from Castro. Then, in February, Romulo Betancourt took office as president of Venezuela, whose dictator had been thrown out earlier.

Castro and Betancourt held a meeting in Caracas, and soon after Luis Somoza became convinced that his administration was marked for overthrow by the so-called Caracas group. He was then embroiled in a quarrel with neighboring Honduras and his regime was under propaganda attacks by a powerful Caracas radio station.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."
By TOM TAYLOR

AN Oak Bay reader who believes that man physically is very much what his mind tells him, questions the intelligence of a tobacco leaf to go to the lungs instead of, say, to the feet.

Smoking itself is an illusion, for, he says, "in our generally accepted beliefs... we assign power to smoking to lull us into a state of lazy thinking... so restful is the aroma and effect of a good cigar we actually mesmerize ourselves into a day or night sweet dream."

He's got something there, maybe, but to the national treasury there's no illusion about the taxes on tobacco. Smokers should get medals for their heroic contribution to the country's wealth.

There is talk of re-investigating the murder of Sir Harry Oakes and his daughter says she knows things that might be of value in solving the mystery. "For 16 years nobody has ever asked me if I have any information," is how she puts it. A somewhat strange statement, surely.

Did she have to wait to be asked, in a matter so serious and affecting her so closely?

The Vancouver soccer stars certainly held their end up when playing against celebrated professional clubs from the Old Country. It is becoming a habit with them to tie or defeat these illustrious visitors and West Bromwich are the latest team to go home with some notions revised.

I hate to rub salt into tartan wounds but perhaps it was a good job for Dundee they didn't have to tackle the B.C. All-Stars. Judging by their inept showing against West Bromwich there would have been no marmalade for breakfast next morning, only the taste of burnt toast.

The magazine "Canadian Tourism" enjoins us to be courteous to visitors and so here is a verse by Mrs. R. Elliott of Edmonton, whom the amplitude of our trees inspired to poetic mood.

Oh! Mighty Tree, what a story you could tell!
How old are you? Or do you feel just born?
You stand so tall, so broad, so proud,
And look so majestic!
Your dress gently caresses your mighty neighbours
As the air quietly stirs,
And, while I gaze, a great wonder enters my heart.
Standing in the exquisite silence,
So refreshing from the maddening world,
Memories leave me and I see only a great Oak
Of hundreds of years of world's presence;
Sprung from a tiny acorn which had escaped
The squirrel and a wee boy's hand.

It may be familiarity that dulls enthusiasm, but there are some mighty oaks around our house whose strip-tease act is a caress I could well do without.

How the moons fly. It seems no time at all since Lt.-Col. Jack Fawcett took command of the Canadian Scottish and now his term is over and Major Peter Ramsay is moving up. The regiment remains in good hands, and indeed the roster over the years shows how fortunate this fine unit has been in its commanders. I only hope the push-button era which threatens to take the wings off air-men never manages to take the kilts off the Can-Scots. Life wouldn't then be worth living, would it?

Mr. Gagliardi's fame must have preceded him to Europe if the principal news he found there about Canada concerned his own speeding tickets. Fast motor travel seems to fascinate the Highways Minister. He thanked God there were no speed limits in Europe. That was a pity, for in his enthusiasm he sets the kind of example which, as a responsible member of the government, he should eschew.

Man of Iron Conscience

True Worth of John Foster Dulles

By HUGH PILCHER, of The Daily Herald, London

BRITISH politicians of all parties who often strongly criticized John Foster Dulles now find themselves mourning him as a lost friend. The great American secretary of state died after a gallant, stubborn battle against mortal illness during which he earned worldwide admiration for his personal courage. All hearts opened to Dulles at the end. For even those who were critical of his policies and his "dynamite" utterances still revered his drive and absolute integrity.

In turn he infuriated both Conservative and Labor MPs and sometimes both together. But now that he is gone they sincerely regret the passing of this eloquent, strong and resourceful leader of the biggest, strongest country in the Western world. It was easy to quarrel with Dulles; it is much less easy to do without him.

He is now seen to have ranked with Churchill, Bevin, Attlee, Truman, Eden, Adenauer and De Gasperi as one of the greatest postwar figures on the Western side of the Iron Curtain. He stood for unwavering opposition to Communism. Some critics thought him too inflexible, but no one doubted his sincerity and devotion to the cause of world peace.

His astuteness in negotiation did not desert him even during the past painful months of life.

On his final visit last February to London, Paris and Bonn he suffered pain and the foreboding of a rapid and inexorable death. But he consolidated Western policy over Germany—and especially over Berlin with its menacing Communist deadline for trouble.

That was Dulles' last conspicuous achievement on the cold war battlefield. Afterwards spreading cancer, reinforced by pneumonia, laid him low—yet not so low that he could not in hospital discuss with President Eisenhower and Mr. Macmillan a future he himself would never see.

At Westminster, Dulles was regarded by politicians and newspapermen alike as a symbol of American willingness to accept the responsibilities of leadership of the free world.

He successfully fought "isolationism" always latent in such a vast, prosperous country, physically remote from other continents. Hence some of the speeches and articles which baffled and angered European opinion and especially British opinion. He could express the full vigor of his convictions in America, sincerely and emphatically, but reported in Europe these remarks sometimes appeared as "brinkmanship."

But those who dealt with Dulles in international talks knew that he was playing a different game according to the rigid rules laid down by his own iron conscience; they knew that he was fighting for political survival in America—because he knew that he had an indispensable part to play in his country's foreign affairs.

During the early years of his office as secretary of state he was often regarded in Europe as a cold man, dedicated to lofty principles but lacking in warmth and personality.

In later years this suspicion ebbed and by last autumn—the time of the first Russian ultimatum over Britain and of strong popular appreciation of his true worth—there was a growing realization that the possession in international negotiations of so capable and so strong a man as Dulles was an asset without compare to the West.

This lack of popular appreciation had never, however, been shared by those who worked with him closely and both Foreign Secretary Lloyd and German Chancellor Adenauer had spoken of him for years with affection and appreciation of his qualities.

The way in which his standing in the West had increased in the last year or so can be measured by the almost unprecedented tributes paid to him at the time of his retirement, and later at his death. It might in fact be regarded as the climax to a long building up of esteem.

Outside his immediate British contacts during his six years of office, he aroused hostility in the Labor Party by his support of Chiang Kai Shek against the new Communist regime on the Chinese mainland.

He angered British Conservatives over Suez in 1956 when he opposed the Anglo-French action in Egypt. This episode troubled Anglo-American relations, but close co-operation was restored between the leaders of the two countries at Bermuda early in 1957. In October 1958 Dulles told the British television audience that he regarded the extremely close co-operation then existing between the two countries as setting to others a valuable example of interdependence.

It is generally agreed that his vision extended far beyond mere hostility to the spread of Communism. He tried to raise living standards in backward countries; he was a friend of the Colombo Plan; he used his influence to direct the flow of American millions into countries which are poised between the Communist and Western worlds.

The sincerest of tributes have been paid to him by both Hugh Gaitskill and Selwyn Lloyd.

Dulles was 71 years old, he was married 49 years ago in the same year when he started a law practice at New York.

He was soon in public service. After two years as a Doughty in the First World War he represented America on various peace-negotiating bodies—a job to which he came back in 1945 when the United Nations was founded at San Francisco.

For years he was adviser to the American administration on foreign affairs. As a senator and special representative of President Truman he negotiated and signed the Japanese Peace Treaty.

Besides his international career, he was a philanthropist, banker, pillar of his church, author and notable orator.

Few men had wider experience of the profoundest of international controversies; none brought to them such conviction and energy in support of his cause as did John Foster Dulles.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

ABOUT a year ago one of my old school chums who has risen high in the industrial world was appointed to the managing directorship of the prosperous enterprise he has helped to build. I saw him at the time, and he looked pretty worn and weary. I thought, a little complacently, of the price he had obviously paid for his personal success.

Yesterday I saw him again for the first time since, and was astonished to see how well he looked. Care-free, ruddy, relaxed, he seemed 10 years younger than a year ago. And I commented on it.

"I'll tell you the secret," he said. "No more conferences. No more staff meetings. No more management sessions. I am the head man now. So why should I have to sit and preside over gatherings at which everybody seems to feel obliged to sound off? Why should I wait and watch people make up their minds? I have put an end to all that. More time is wasted in conferences and meetings than in any other process in industry. When I want information, I send for it. And when I want an opinion, I ask for it. It has to be made up before it comes to me. result: I never felt better in my life." "And how's the business?" I enquired.

"Up 9 per cent," said he, very healthy.

Maybe his subordinates are looking a little peaked. Those conferences probably were a restful way of spending several hours of the work week in pleasant company on executive type chairs, curved to fit.

Music on Sunday

The Alliance Relents

(From The Winnipeg Free Press)

SYMPHONY orchestras, even the best of them, are notoriously expensive to maintain. An orchestra may be so successful that it becomes a highly valued, vital force in the life of the community in which it functions, and still be a long way from financial security.

Measured by artistic achievement and increasing popularity, the Winnipeg Symphony Orchestra has enjoyed a successful season. There is nothing surprising, though, in the fact that it is still anxiously seeking ways to find new audiences, and income.

One such venture, by which it could at once increase its income and its service to the community, has suggested itself to the orchestra. It could give a series of Sunday concerts. However, the present terms of the Lord's Day Act make this impossible. The orchestra has therefore asked the provincial government to change the act in such a way that cultural, non-profit organizations will be exempted from its regulations.

By a fortunate coincidence, the Lord's Day Alliance, in its just published annual report of its national activities, touches on this very aspect of the law. The Alliance looks with favor upon the idea of removing from the act the present restrictions on "cultural entertainment and activities provided on the Lord's Day for their beneficial and elevating influence, without a view to monetary gain."

It would therefore appear that there is general agreement on the merits of Sunday entertainment of the sort suggested by the symphony orchestra. Nor need there be any fear such a change in the law, a change contemplated by the Alliance itself, will in any way weaken the spirit of the Lord's Day Act. The act is primarily directed against non-essential commercial activity on Sundays.

The Winnipeg Symphony Orchestra has every right to expect a sympathetic hearing from the government. And there is good reason to hope that what, to many people, has seemed a weakness in the Lord's Day Act will soon be removed, and its moral strength by just that much increased.

Contempt of the Law

(From The Calgary Albertan)

LAST July a Calgary motorist was convicted of impaired driving and his licence was suspended. A few days ago he drove through a stop sign and collided with another vehicle. Damage amounted to $4,500.

The penalty imposed in Calgary police court for driving while his licence was suspended: $100 and costs. For the careless driving charge: $100 and costs.

When the court doesn't take any more seriously than that such contempt for the law, such contempt of a court order, why should the offending motorist?

All the court is doing is making driving a little more expensive if the offender gets caught.

Times Repeats Lloyd Report

LONDON (AP) — The London Times yesterday repeated in its weekly edition the sensational report suggesting that Selwyn Lloyd's days as Britain's foreign secretary are numbered.

Prime Minister Macmillan has strongly denied the suggestion.

The Times weekly edition goes all over the world and is considered required reading for politicians and diplomats.

Overdrawn at Bank Old Stuff for Ike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower confessed yesterday that he knows from personal experience when he was a young army officer what it is to be "always overdrawn at the bank."

And he said he does not want this to be the perpetual state of federal finances.

For this reason, he told a group of business magazine editors, he must act to see that

Closed-Ranks Call Sounded

Labor Wars Aid Reds—Reuther

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Auto workers president Walter P. Reuther yesterday called for three-way union-management-government meetings to ease labor strife "which is playing into the hands of the Communists."

Reuther told the Federation of Women's Clubs that continued labor strife, as well as other divisions of the American people, aids the Communists who attempt to keep a condition of turmoil.

"I think that when the Russians developed the H-bomb and thereby became aware of its destructive capacity," Reuther said, "they recognized that no nation could win the next war. As a result, they decided to shift their emphasis to economic penetration, and political subversion, and this is how they hope to win the hundreds of millions of uncommitted peoples."

"It would be a real catastrophe if under the pressure of domestic difficulties we put all our emphasis upon military power as the answer to the Soviet challenge."

The Auto Workers' president said he feared collective bargaining in 1959 because of what he called a "continuing hardening of attitudes and an unwillingness to face and work out problems."

"I think we need to find a way to facilitate the coming together of free labor and free management with educators and government officials and other groups interested in these problems," he said.

"I believe that we ought to try to get management to join with us in creating some mechanism whereby we can get together periodically with government and other groups to explore these common problems."

Reuther said the United States should establish a set of priorities for development of the country. He listed as top items, which should be undertaken the getting of workers back to work, a vast improvement of the educational system, which he called "tragic," the expanding of the foreign aid program and "the urgent question of putting the right kind of moral symbol on the banner that we hold high in the world."

'Most People Guilty' On Impairment Charge

VANCOUVER (CP)—Magistrate Oscar Orr said Thursday most people charged with impaired driving are guilty.

He said the only reason some get off is because "the legal proof doesn't satisfy the tribunal." Magistrate Orr made the statement after dismissing an impaired driving charge.

"Most people who are brought into court on impaired driving charges are guilty," he said, "and I don't care who hears it."

Enthusiasm Justified

Bank Stock Rise

Market Feature

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

The popularity of bank stocks among Canadian investors has been one of the features of the current selective market. Bank stocks have become "specialties" and the market value of most of them have advanced over 50 per cent in the past year.

Some justification for this enthusiasm has been revealed in increased dividends, and offerings of warrants to purchase additional stock.

A notable performer in this regard has been the Toronto-Dominion Bank which yesterday announced its was increasing its quarterly dividend rate from 40 cents to 47 1/2 cents.

This was somewhat unexpected for in the previous quarter the rate had been upped from 35 cents.

While all banks appear to be participating in the general growth of the Canadian economy, the Toronto-Dominion action is notable in that this was one of the three banks which are now specializing in personal loans on chattel mortgages.

By this means, these banks are enabled to make a service charge in addition to the bank maximum interest rate of 6 per cent. Loans under the personal loan plans of the T.D., the Bank of Nova Scotia and the Canadian Bank of Commerce give a yield to the banks of rather more than 10 per cent.

While this is high when compared with the rate to those customers with conventional loans, the banks are still lending at considerably below the interest rate charged by the average finance company for consumer goods financing.

So far, the remaining chartered banks have shown no indication they are going to follow the lead, but the outlook nonetheless looks good for them too.

Banks are flourishing despite the current high interest rates for they are both borrowers and lenders, and they have considerably improved their earning position by increasing their charges on normal banking transactions.

This increase in the cost of doing business is one about which the bank customers complain, but are able to do little to rectify, for the banks supply what is tantamount to an essential service to anyone who is in business — big or small.

Labor to Have College

TORONTO (CP)—A labor college affiliated with Carleton University in Ottawa is expected to open its doors to students next year, it was learned here Thursday.

If the idea goes through, the union-backed college would be the first of its kind in Canada. It would offer two five-month courses in union theory and practice each school year, but this could be expanded into a much broader curriculum as the project developed.

Delegates at the national policy conference of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) voted Thursday to spend up to $15,000 a year to send students through the college.

"We expect it to open in September, 1960," said USWA director William Mahoney. He reported the Canadian Labor Congress, the 1,000,000-member parent body of Canada's major unions, has made "considerable progress" toward establishing the labor college.

He did not disclose the name of the university with which the new college would be associated, but union sources said it was Carleton University in Ottawa.

The council will award $400 for the best production of a play by a Canadian and $100 to the author, at each of the eight zone festivals. A further $500 prize may be awarded to a Canadian playwright if his play is entered in the Dominion final.

Only plays not presented previously in a federal festival will be eligible.

Better-Tax-Deal Cry Hypocrisy—Fleming

Ottawa Highlights

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming accused the Liberals of "empty pretence and hypocrisy" in its demands for a better tax deal for the provinces from the federal government.

When the Liberals were in government, Mr. Fleming said, they "panged, barred and bolted the door to the provinces in their pleas for assistance."

His attack came as the Commons wound up debate on second reading—approval in principle—of the government's bill to extend for another year the tax-sharing arrangement implemented by the Conservative administration last year.

Liberals forced a vote on second reading in an evident move to put Progressive Conservative members from Quebec on the spot. The Quebec government has steadfastly refused to participate in the tax-sharing agreements, claiming they are an invasion of provincial rights.

The vote was 156 to 70 in favor of the measure, with 26 of the 51 Quebec Conservatives among those from all parties supporting it.

Erhart Regier (CCF, Burnaby-Coquitlam) urged new External Affairs Minister Green to "take a hand" in establishing a harbor authority with jurisdiction over the lower section of British Columbia's Fraser River as one of his last acts before leaving the works department.

Heeding pleas from electric power companies, the Senate banking committee voted to drop a clause on an electricity export tax from a government bill already approved by the Commons. The Senate must approve the recommendation.

Terms of the contract were agreed upon last week after the union had threatened to strike.

Jim Roberts bought two cars for the price of one!

You can own a Morris '1000' station wagon (or a 2-door sedan) and a '1000' convertible for less than you think.

Jim Roberts was about to buy a new "low priced" American car. But he realized his family needed two cars. A helpful Morris salesman showed Jim how he could buy a Morris '1000' station wagon (or sedan) and a Morris convertible for less than he was going to pay for one car.

Jim was sold when he heard the Morris '1000' was the family car developed from M.G. racing research.

He liked the safety of the all-steel, one-piece body too. And he found Morris torsion "sway-free" ride really comfortable. The clincher was the 12 month written factory warranty. And economy? Jim could run both his Morris cars for less than the one "big" car he almost bought. To Jim Roberts it was sound business to choose Morris. Jim has an idea here—don't you think?

BAPCO

The executive of the B.C. Hospitals' Association yesterday told the provincial cabinet it is considering recommending that a commission similar to the B.C. Power Commission be established to operate the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

"We are interested in it as something that might benefit the government by taking BCHIS out of politics, and benefit hospitals by freeing them of the time-lag involved in passage of budgets through the legislative assembly," a brief presented to cabinet said.

MEETINGS URGED

The delegation, led by association president J. H. Hargrave of Trail, asked for assurance that senior members of departments concerned with hospitals, "specifically, the ministers of health services and hospital insurance, social welfare, labor and finance, meet with the association executive for consultation at least twice a year."

The delegation admitted the BCHIS is a good service, but added that "many of our members at this time appear to be losing confidence in BCHIS."

WITHOUT POWER

"Why accept responsibility for managing hospitals without power to manage them effectively?" the brief asked and then warned that if some of the questions "some of our members are asking are not satisfactorily answered it may soon be difficult to find suitable personnel, first on the boards, and then all down the line on hospital staffs."

It asks that greater freedom be permitted to hospital societies in writing their own bylaws and points out that "no bylaws can be produced that will uniformly fit the particular needs of all individual hospitals."

The brief also warns that "a point comes when economy can go too far and defeat its own ends . . . this point has been passed in many public hospitals in this province."

HISTORIC HARBOR

The fishing settlement of Trepassey with its fine harbor on the southeast coast of Newfoundland was established in 1617.

An appeal for Canadian pennants to make jackets like the one he is wearing, was made yesterday by James Carlson, 17, president of the Junior Red Cross at Cowichan High School. He goes to the Red Cross international convention in Toronto in August and hopes to get as many pennants as possible to make jackets that will be given to delegates from outside the country to advertise Canada. Pennants may be left at the Colonist's 30 Kenneth Street office, the high school office, or mailed to Mrs. Heather Bulcock, Box 1049, Duncan. — (Colonist photo by Charles Thompson.)

Dowell Pours Scorn On Brown's Attack

Remarks of real estate man Peter Brown about Victoria civic administration were "too stupid to comment on," Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell said yesterday.

And this triggered another attack by Mr. Brown on what he called "the practice at city hall of talking by the yard and thinking by the inch."

Mr. Brown said last night he was concerned that "our city fathers have a mania to outdo the American Congress in increasing public debt."

Wednesday night, he told 65 persons at a meeting of the Victoria Ratepayers' Educational Association he wanted an investigation of civic leaders' "thinking ability."

Attacking the mayor and council, Mr. Brown charged concealment of the city debt, poor judgment in land sales, and extravagance in building the new firehall.

"From the report of his speech, he shows an almost total lack of knowledge of civic affairs," Acting Mayor Dowell said.

"For instance, we are quite proud of our debt situation, the way we have been decreasing it every year."

In a statement issued last night, Mr. Brown said "Ald. Dowell, who lives in Oak Bay, very inaccurately and without checking his facts . . . stated that I was neither resident nor taxpayer in the city of Victoria."

Not only does he live in a rented home on McClure, Mr. Brown pointed out, but he's lived in the city since 1940, and what's more, was born in Victoria.

Mr. Brown said he has paid taxes on property he owned on Oak Bay Avenue, Fort Street, Runnymede Avenue, and most recently Richardson Street. None are still owned by him and the latter was sold two weeks ago.

Berlin Guarantee Bid Sidetracked by Reds

GENEVA (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko Thursday sidetracked a Western bid for free access to West Berlin.

The three Western ministers, in a 90-minute secret session, asked for the guarantee as a test of Soviet willingness to reach a compromise agreement in the Berlin crisis.

President Eisenhower warned Wednesday that he would refuse to go to a summit meeting unless the Russians withdrew their threat to the isolated city.

Western informants quoted Indians were growing tobacco along the St. Lawrence when the first French settlers came to Canada.

Gromyko as saying he would be happy to assure free access to West Berlin—but posed this Babs' favorite cow in the William Kier herd, is considered "a cow and three-quarters, by eastern standards," says his proud owner, one of five B.C.

dairymen who made almost a clean sweep in Canada-wide Jersey competition. — (Colonist photo by Chuck Thompson.)

'Bundle of Medals'

Babs the Prize Cow Brings Home Bacon

NORTH COWICHAN—A 73-year-old retired policeman with "a bundle of medals" won by his cows, is one of five B.C. farmers who brought to this province most of the top awards in the annual Canadian Jersey Cattle Club contest.

William Kier, of Somenos Road, who entered the Provincial Police in 1908 as a constable and retired as an inspector 39 years later, won the prize for his herd of fewer than 10 cows.

John Hubert, owner of Kokilah Farms just south of Duncan, was the second Cowichan farmer to win an all-Canada award. His was for the best milk production of cows in a herd of more than 40.

TOPS IN CLASSES

Arrowsmith Farms at Hilliers, owned by H. R. MacMillan, and the R. L. Mutrie Farm at Saanich were the two other Vancouver Island farms winning top prizes for their class. Oliver Evans, Chilliwack, Canadian Jersey Cattle Club western field man, said the fifth B.C. award went to a dairymen on the mainland.

Mr. Kier's milking cows showed a yearly production that was classed as 33 per cent more than the amount and quality of milk set by the club. "We have lots of certificates and medals, about a bundle of them, for the cows," he said. "Kierholm Valour's Babs got a silver medal certificate last month for top production in Canada for two-year-olds," Mr. Kier said. "She gave 541 pounds of butterfat in 305 days."

"The federal government has her in their record of performance as a 172-per-cent cow," he said.

During a tour of his 28-acre farm between Drinkwater and Herd Roads, with an old-style stanchion barn, he said: "Most of my work (in the provincial police) was on Vancouver Island."

"I was on strikes mostly. Much as I hated them I could not get away from them. The police sort of used me as a buffer. I don't know why they picked on me. Fate plays funny tricks on people."

"When we first came here we had horses, and no idea of shipping milk. A neighbor wanted to use the horses and he started us with milk cows. "Most of the ones we have now, eight milking and nine heifers, are from the first couple of cows we got."

"They are all through artificial insemination. We just do as the experts tell us. They are the ones who deserve the prizes."

Road Money in Bonds

North Cowichan Keeps Cash Busy

NORTH COWICHAN—Council feels it made a "good deal" yesterday.

It decided to purchase $60,000 worth of short-term government treasury bills at an interest rate of 5.5 per cent from the Bank of Montreal in Duncan.

Every $100 in bonds costs $94.77 to buy.

"We are getting more interest by investing the money this way than we are paying out on debentures floated to finance the road program," said Reeve C. A. P. Murlson.

The $60,000 is part of the $500,000 road building program council is implementing, and available for investing because the provincial government has indicated it is not willing to pay a share of fixing a section of the Island Highway.

The money will be invested until the government pays its share, said the Reeve.

Promoter Met at Crossroads As Gangland Exacts Revenge

Pardon My Glove

Doc's 'Operation' Saved Toy Bulldog

Ned Brown is one of the greats of ring-side writing. An old-timer who knew boxing intimately during its golden age, he has been president of the Boxing Writers Association (1958) and now is a member of the board of directors of the BWA. He began writing for the old New York World before the turn of the century and his column for that newspaper, "Pardon My Glove," became one of the most widely read ones in the country. The following is the first of five articles written by Brown, who has drawn from his rich supply of anecdotes and personal recollections, on some boxing matches and personalities he will never forget.

By NED BROWN

NEW YORK (NANA) — It was night on 30 years ago that Jack "Doc" Kearns, last and liveliest of the colorful fight managers of boxing's Golden Era, saved his middleweight champion, Mickey Walker, the "Toy Bulldog," from ignominious defeat.

Riding high, wide and handsome in 1930, Kearns decided he and his fighter should grace the Kentucky Derby with their presence. "We'll have a high old time," the Doc told Mickey, "so in order to have backsheesh to wager on the winner of the derby, I have signed you up for a bout that will be a 'breather' for you and will net us a guarantee of 10 grand."

So on Kentucky Derby eve, May 16, Mickey sat in the ring of the Louisville fight club, facing one Paul Swiderski, a Polish-American brawler out of Syracuse, managed by Harry Lenny, himself a nationally known pilot of fighters.

Louisville was crowded with a horde of some 50,000 racing fans, and after mingling with numerous friends during the afternoon, Doc and his tiger were rarin' to go. On arriving at the arena, Kearns sought out the promoter and asked:

"Who you got to referee?"

"Well, Marvin Hart is here and so is Ed Dickerson. Which do you prefer?"

"Neither," snapped Kearns. "I want Tod Wilkerson there, to referee my fight," he said.

"Right there and then I knew things weren't gonna be kosher for my side," Lenny told me in reviewing the harrowing events of that night some years later.

"I'd never heard of this Wilkerson or whatever his name was, before or since. But I had trained Paul well for this fight. I knew he was strictly a one-punch guy who could throw a right cross through a knothole with dynamite in it. So I give him his instructions. 'Belt him out with the right as soon as you get in reach of him—any' don't spare the hosses in gettin' there'."

At the sound of the bell, both fighters sprang forward and as they crashed together Swiderski shot his right "through the knothole," landing flush on Mickey's chin. Simultaneously Walker's lethal left hook caught Paul on the jaw and both fighters hit the deck.

The double knockdown brought the howling spectators to their feet and sparked more excitement than any fight since the crackling Dempsey-Firpo epic at the Polo Grounds seven years before.

With Walker flattened on the canvas and Swiderski rising from it, Kearns added fuel to the flame of excitement by shouting instructions to the referee. It so befuddled the official he ceased counting and stood gaping helplessly until Walker staggered to his feet after a 20-second rest.

Swiderski wasted no time in uncorking another explosive right, again dropping Walker. This time the Toy Bulldog took no more than 12 seconds to resume a perpendicular stance, only to receive another haymaker that plopped him to the canvas for the third knockdown and completely out.

Whereupon the nimble-witted Doc changed from vocal to physical action. Diving under the ring he disconnected the switchbox controlling the lights over the ring and plunged the arena into darkness.

Soon after the start of the second round Swiderski again connected with his right and Mickey took his fourth trip to the canvas. Now, however, he was becoming "acclimated" to the punch, and when he arose he resumed fighting with surprising vigor. So much so that when the gong sounded ending the round Mickey continued battling and the referee was powerless to stop the milling.

The seconds and handlers from both sides entered the melee with gusto and when the policemen around the ring, aside entered the fray there ensued a "cops-and-robbers" fracas that would warm the heart of any latterday TV director.

The third round found Swiderski enervated by his extra efforts and Mickey was by way of gaining the upperhand when Paul flung another "knothole" and Mickey bounced as he hit the canvas. It looked like curtains for the Toy Bulldog as the round had more than half a minute to go.

But Kearns again came to the rescue. He ran over to the timekeeper's bell and banged it with a water bottle, halting the action and netting his fighter a much needed respite. The rest of the fight, which went the 10 rounds punctuated when necessary by Doc's usurpation of the timekeeper's function as bell ringer, was anticlimactic.

At pay-off time the promoter reported the gate had proved disappointing and he stood to lose $3,000 on the promotion. Whereupon Jack Kearns did something entirely out of character. He cut his guarantee down to $7,000!

"It was more fun than a barrel of monkeys," said he. "Me and Mickey enjoyed it immensely. And we don't want to leave anybody with any regrets."

Upon hearing of that last remark of the Doc's, Harry Lenny and his Tiger Swiderski chorused, "Nerts!"

(Next: A lesson in "Honesty")

LOS ANGELES—The underworld's shadow over boxing took on solid and frightening form here late Wednesday night when mobsters attacked fight promoter Jackie Leonard and left him critically injured in his own garage minutes after he had dismissed his special police guard.

Leonard had been under special police protection since May 20, when he touched off an explosive inquiry into the fight game in southern California by testifying that, as promoter at Hollywood Legion Stadium, he was an unwilling go-between for underworld fight czars Frankie Carbo and Blinky Palermo and Don Neseeth, manager of welterweight champion Don Jordan. Neseeth also testified that he had been threatened following the Jordan-Virgil Akims rematch in St. Louis when he refused to turn over 15 per cent of the purse.

Carbo was arrested last week on a charge of being an undercover fight promoter and manager, but has since been released on bail.

Wednesday the underworld struck back in what police termed a "planned assault." Leonard had dismissed his police guard, saying he did not intend to go out again, but left the house to get a newspaper. He was found later by his wife, suffering from concussion of the brain and partial paralysis after being beaten with a metal instrument.

"I pulled the car into the garage and got out," Leonard told police from his hospital bed. "I heard footsteps and thought it was my wife. Something hit me from behind, then somebody grabbed me and hit me again. I was knocked to my knees, and they began kicking me."

Leonard said he believed he was attacked by two men but did not get a look at them. He had been receiving threatening telephone calls since his testimony. "Carbo told me that we'll meet at the crossroads," Leonard had testified at the hearing. "You're going to get hurt," he told me. "We're going to make an example of you."

Leonard said underworld interests are of the impression that he owns part of Jordan's contract. This, he claims, is not true. Neseeth was approached by mobsters twice to turn over half his interest in Jordan, but apparently hasn't been cowed by the vicious attack on Leonard. Asked if he had any idea who did it, he replied:

"Hell, yes, I have an idea who's behind it. Everybody knows. He may not have hired the men who did the job, but the whole mess is his fault. The sooner we get rid of these kind of people, the better off we'll all be. The police can't do it all."

Over in the National League, San Francisco Giants finally caught up with Lew Burdette, who had beaten them 13 straight times in a string reaching back to 1954.

With sophomore first baseman Orlando Cepeda doing almost all the damage by driving in seven runs with his 11th and 12th home runs and two other hits, the Giants knocked off Milwaukee's leading Braves 11-5.

The Braves grabbed an early 5-1 lead but with Cepeda taking over at the plate and Stu Miller pitching five scoreless relief innings, the Giants came on to make it a rout.

Result left the Giants only two and a half games out of the lead and enabled the fast-moving Pittsburgh Pirates to get solidly into contention, only a game further back, with a 9-3 rout of St. Louis Cardinals. It was the sixth win in a row for the Pirates and their 12th victory in the last 15 games.

Seven Clubs Fear Worst As Yanks Start to Move

Are things returning to normal in the American League?

That's what seven clubs are fearing as the New York Yankees, in their first real drive of the season, continue to get the combination of hitting and pitching which has put them in the world series in nine out of the last 10 years.

Yesterday, the defending champions made it seven victories in their last nine games by walloping Detroit Tigers, 14-2, with a display of power-hitting and steady pitching, by Whitey Ford, who won his sixth game in nine decisions. Ford scattered seven hits other milestone in a great career when one went for a double. It was his 651st two-base clout, and tied him with Honus Wagner for the all-time National League lead. Only American Leaguers Tris Speaker (793) and Ty Cobb (724) have hit more doubles than Musial.

Los Angeles Dodgers failed to keep pace with the Giants and Pirates, losing a 5-3 decision to Cincinnati Reds.

Garden Notes

Lawns Need Soaking

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

The three most common mistakes in the management of our lawns are these: We water too often and not deeply enough. We don't mow often enough. We mow too closely.

On our street, it is a common thing, of a warm summer evening, to see half the population watering the lawn by hand. This is a soul-soothing occupation—acting the ministering angel to your grass—and its freshened appearance gives one the same sort of satisfaction as a freshly polished floor or a newly painted wall. I doubt if it does much good, though, and such superficial watering may actually do harm.

Hand-watering is no good for lawns. No one ever had the patience to stand still long enough to really saturate the soil. A sprinkler is a must, and it should remain in the one position until the soil is moistened to a depth of at least six inches. You'd be surprised how much water that takes.

Shallow, frequent waterings encourage roots to form in the upper layer of soil rather than foraging away down deep, and the first time these daily dribbles are not forthcoming, these shallow roots wither and die. So water deeply, and test the soil with a knife for moisture before you get out the hose again, thereby training the grass to plunge deeply for its moisture.

Mowing alone will never make a good lawn out of one which has been poorly prepared, but it helps a lot. A good technique in mowing fosters the growth of the finer and better lawn grasses and helps control the worst of the weeds and coarse invader grasses.

If you mow closely, you are obviously going to remove too much foliage—the lungs and digestive system of the grass plants—and you tax the resources of the roots to make good this loss of leaf surface. In addition, close mowing will scalp bare any little rises or elevations in the lawn, admitting moss and creating a beautiful seed bed for weeds and crab grass.

Leave the putting greens for the golf courses, and set your mower up as high as you can adjust it—never less than an inch, and 1½ inches is better—so that you just tip the grass when you mow. The result may look a bit shaggy to an eye accustomed to a close-mown lawn, but you'll have a thicker stand which can resist moss and weed invasion, and you'll leave enough leaf surface to breathe and feed the roots.

It is a peculiar thing, but careful experiments have shown that the offener you mow, the less grass you remove. Twice-a-week mowing will give you 20 per cent less lawn mowings for your compost heap than once-a-week cutting, and this is all to the good. Just tipping the grass twice weekly, with the mower set high, isn't nearly as much work as it sounds, and it thickens the stand into a lush, even sward in which the finer grasses predominate.

With the more frequent mowing, too, the clippings are fine and short, and can be left on the lawn without any danger of smothering the roots. You can do your mowing without a grass catcher, and without any raking up afterward, leaving the mowings to insulate the roots against the summer heat and to build up soil fertility.

Your compost heap may get hungry, but this treatment will give you a lawn which resists moss and crab grass; one that remains green throughout hot, dry spells, and one which becomes soft and springy underfoot.

Fist Replaces Intelligence

Crooks Lose Finesse

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI)—Modern criminals turn to violence because they are too lazy or lack the talent to develop any skill at their jobs, according to an old hand from Scotland Yard.

The gun, the bludgeon and the fist, he noted, have largely replaced the finesse that many old-time lawbreakers used to bring to their chosen profession.

Scotland Yard does not permit its famous investigators to give out interviews where they can be quoted by name, and this one offered his view with that understanding.

"When did you last hear of a good pickpocket?" he asked. "Before the war there were signs wherever crowds gathered warning them to beware of pickpockets. Today, it's one of the rarer crimes.

"The reasons are obvious. It takes years to develop the technique of picking a pocket and staying out of jail. Why bother when you can get the wallet or wristwatch simply by fracturing the victim's skull?"

Another infrequent type nowadays is the bigtime confidence man.

"Before the war these fellows would spend months setting up a victim for a killing," the detective said. "They were intelligent, glib, agreeable chaps of considerable general knowledge. When they came for a specific job they got to know it inside out.

"They would even bring confederates over from Australia or the United States if the sucker—a maharajah or American millionaire perhaps—needed the additional persuasion they could provide.

"I must admit the post-war millionaire is apt to be less glib than wealthy men used to be, but even so it's so much easier for the underworld to simply rob him with or without violence.

"The old-time con man would consider it an affront to his profession to pull a fast one if he had to descend to this level."

Some other crimes, he said, have dropped from fashion because they are outdated.

"We don't get much counterfeiting of coins any more," he said. "Simply isn't worth the effort to make shillings and half-crowns, considering the high cost of living."

Revival Needed

New Grip on Life Urged for Market

A move to return Victoria's Cormorant Street public market to its former glories was outlined yesterday by stallholders' spokesman Attilio Randy.

Mr. Randy, who has operated a stall at the market since shortly after it opened in 1914 and who recently spearheaded a drive to keep the city from evicting all stallholders, said he wants to see the number of stalls increased.

REVIVAL OF INTEREST

"We need a revival of interest in the market or else it will become moribund," Mr. Randy said.

"If we can show the city that there is a revival of interest in the market then we can get them to co-operate in improving the building."

He said he is issuing a public appeal for people interested in opening new market stalls, and wants the general public to co-operate in patronizing the market.

"We offer three advantages to customers: Our produce is absolutely fresh, market prices are highly competitive, and because the produce is local we keep the money in the local economy," he stated.

Stall proprietors are at present leasing space in the building on a week-to-week basis, with the threat of demolition still hanging over their heads.

Marriage-Go-Round Spins in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The latest turns on Hollywood's marital merry-go-round:

Deborah Kerr—Off.

Mickey Rooney—On.

Gordon Tarzan Scott-Vera Miles—Solo rides trial separation.

Dorothy Malone-Jacques Bergerac—Could be.

Ernest Borgnine—Maybe on, maybe off.

THAT'S CAST

That's the cast. Their stories: Kerr—The English-born actress arrived by jet Wednesday night and said she hopes to get a divorce from British producer Tony Bartley, 39, during her current two-month California stay. On the same plane was writer Peter Viertel, 38, whose name has been linked romantically with Miss Kerr, 37.

DEBORAH KERR

... romantic link

Rooney—The pint-sized actor Wednesday disclosed his marriage to Barbara Thomson, blonde starlet, 22 and, at five-foot-two, an inch shorter than Rooney, 38. His four previous wives towered over him. He said they married Dec. 1 in Mexico after he got a quickie Mexican divorce from No. 4—the former Elaine Mahnen.

TRIAL SEPARATION

Scott-Miles—Scott, 31, and his 28-year-old actress wife said they plan a trial separation after three years of marriage. This was his first and her second marriage.

Malone-Bergerac—Miss Malone, 31, and the 32-year-old French actor are reported planning a Hawaiian wedding this month—her first and his second. His No. 1: Ginger Rogers.

AUGUST DIVORCE

Borgnine—Mrs. Rhoda Borgnine, 35, said Wednesday she'll try to get her August divorce from the 43-year-old actor set aside. Her lawyer declined to say whether she wants a reconciliation. Last month, Borgnine said he planned to marry Mexican actress Katy Jurado, 32, next September. The Borgnines' property settlement is scheduled to cost him at least $750,000 in the next 15 years.

Dream Tour Pact Kept By Classmate

MARBLEHEAD, Mass. (UPI)—Thirty-two years ago, three Dartmouth College graduates made a bargain.

They agreed that the first one to make $1,000,000 would take the other two—and their families—to Europe.

The pact was disclosed by William B. Sleight, Jr., of Marblehead, a Boston attorney and one of the three.

Sleight, his wife, son and daughter are going to Europe this summer with their expenses paid by the classmate who "has made his first million."

Sleight tells the story this way:

The three of them were boyhood pals in Springfield. All three entered Dartmouth and graduated in the class of '25.

Two years later they held a three-man reunion. It was then that they made the bargain, half-serious, half in jest.

The years passed. Each lost track of the other.

Sleight developed a thriving law practice. Of the other two, one became a broker in New York and one became a salesman in the Midwest.

When the telephone rang in Sleight's home here the other day, it was the salesman. He had just been made an executive of his firm. He wanted to keep the bargain.

The salesman also notified the broker.

The Sleights will leave in mid-August for Europe. The broker, because of previous plans, will go over next year.

Sleight declined to identify his benefactor or the broker. "It might embarrass them," he said.

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)—A group of teen-agers here, angered because the doors of a local movie theatre were closed to the city's teen-agers, have tracked down three youths who exploded a stink bomb in the building last Saturday.

Their names have been given to theatre manager Ed Jette, who said he will not press charges but has not yet decided if he will allow them back in the movie house. Other teen-agers now will be allowed to enter without adult supervision.

Mr. Jette said he credits the teen-agers themselves for restoring order and expects them to maintain it in the future. He said earlier that he would not allow them in unless they were accompanied by their parents or a guardian.

Tory Stomps Alberta in Helicopter

FORT MACLEOD, Alta. (Special)—Voters in Alberta's rich grain-growing MacLeod constituency don't need a program to identify the candidates in the June 18 provincial election.

All they have to do is look up to the sky to pick out Progressive Conservative candidate Leo Toone—he's putting on a "whirlwind" campaign in a "chopper."

Toone, a 42-year-old rancher, farmer in this southern foothills district near Lethbridge has chartered a helicopter and is dropping in on the voters anytime and anywhere.

Farmers in the fields are likely to be interrupted by a screeching whir from above.

"We've got to get out and meet the people if we are going to win this election," says the husky six-foot five-inch Toone.

He figures Albertans are ready for a change after 24

Rancher Candidate Drops in from Sky

years. However, before Albertans do make a change, Toone says, they want to make sure that they are going to get something better.

The Conservatives in Alberta are fighting both the Liberal opposition and the Social Credit's multi-million dollar five-year plan which includes such items as 50 old folks' homes, greatly expanded recreational facilities, grants for street paving in small towns, a provincial archives and others.

"What we've got to do," says Toone, "is to let the people of Alberta know that they should have already had this multi-million-dollar plan completed and something more progressive started for a province as wealthy as ours."

How is Toone's salesmanship getting across?

Roger Davis, long-time farmer, 12 miles north of Lethbridge, says: "I like to see a fighter. Past records may be all right, but a change may be what we need, and if we are or should have a change, I'll give my vote for a fighter."

Toone advertises his schedules well in advance. Then, when it comes time for the whirlwind candidate to show up, grandmothers, mothers, teen-agers, youngsters and tiny tots all come out to meet the big stranger—and to see his "chopper."

Toone's opponent is Hon. James Hartley of Fort MacLeod, who has held the MacLeod seat since 1935. Hartley is minister of public works in the Manning government.

Serenading Spinster Drives Doctor Crazy

MILAN, Italy—A 35-year-old doctor said vigorous wooing by a blonde spinster who crooned serenades under his bedroom window was persecution.

He told a court that slim, blonde and handsome Rosa Mancini, 45, had been persecuting him for months with declarations of love.

The doctor, who asked his name to be withheld for professional reasons, showed the court a thick folder full of love letters and poetry dedicated to him from Miss Mancini, who was found guilty of persecution and fined $51.

OTTAWA—Two more Canadians have been invited to have dinner here with Queen Elizabeth. They are Dr. Hilda Neatby, professor of history at the University of Saskatchewan, and Dr. Oscar Sykora, 29, a New Canadian from Czechoslovakia.

LONDON—Home Secretary R. A. Butler appealed to the public to help police track down the white murderers of a West Indian Negro, Kelvin Cochrane, killed two weeks ago in London's Notting Hill area.

Says Pre-First War Ship Commander

Navy Morale Never Better

WINNIPEG (CP)—Rear-Adm. Walter Hose, who commanded one of the Royal Canadian Navy's first warships in 1911, says navy morale is better than it was in those days.

The retired officer, here for the annual meeting of the Naval Officers' Association of Canada, said that technical developments have not taken the spirit out of the navy.

"Electronic devices tend to improve the teamwork between ranks and ratings," he said. "Jobs are of more equal importance today and everyone realizes the interdependence of team members."

Morale is higher than it has ever been. Rear-Adm. Hose said today's seaman is "better trained, better educated and a better man all around" than the seaman of former days.

Mooring Space to Double

Work has already started at Sidney on a federal government project designed to more than double the mooring for small boats and pleasure craft. Two of the new floats will be available for public use, while the third will be used exclusively by vessels wishing to clear Canadian customs. The $40,000 face-lifting job includes relocation and lengthening of the existing pile and timber breakwater to increase the mooring area. Pacific Piledriving Company Ltd. of Victoria was awarded the public works department contract to complete the job by Aug. 13.

Train Wreck Tried In Hope to Get Jobs

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Two youths were indicted on federal charges they tried to derail a New York Central train so that they would get work clearing up the wreckage. They were accused of placing steel sheets on the tracks May 20. A freight train struck them but was not derailed.

Portland Host to RCN

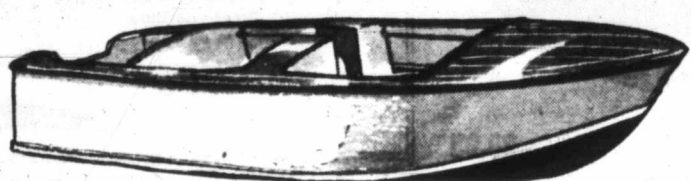

The Royal Canadian Navy is sending six destroyer escorts of Pacific Command to Portland, Ore., for the city's Rose Festival and the Oregon Centennial celebrations. A navy spokesman said here yesterday the Assiniboine, St. Laurent, Saguenay, Skeena, Fraser and Margaree will make the trip, leaving Esquimalt Monday and arriving in Portland the following day. The ships, units of the Second Canadian Escort Squadron, will be under command of Capt. J. C. Pratt aboard the Assiniboine, flagship of the squadron and the vessel assigned to carry Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip from Vancouver to Nanaimo during their July royal visit. During their stay in Portland of nine days, the ships' companies will march in parades connected with the Oregon 100th birthday celebrations and attend civic functions.

Tug, Warship Heave-to

Epic Tow Battling Gigantic Seas

Mountainous seas forced the Victoria-owned tug Cambrian Salvor to heave-to for 48 hours in gale-lashed seas off the coast of Chile with a 30,000-ton battleship in tow.

Skipper James Van Comodo radioed Island Tug and Barge here yesterday with news that the Cambrian Salvor was again making five knots despite heavy seas.

The epic voyage combines one of the longest tows in nautical history with one of the largest ships ever to be strung on the end of a deep-sea towline.

The 10,000-mile haul from Concepcion, Chile, to Japan, where the battleship will be broken up for scrap, is expected to take more than three months.

Bad weather dogged the endeavor from the start. There was a five-day delay before the tow could get under way May 29, while winter gales howled outside the harbor.

The salvage ship and its tow battled high seas for three days before it was forced to heave-to and wait out the worst of the gale. Five of the 32-man salvage crew are on the former Chilean battleship Almirante Latorre.

The battleship was under construction in a British yard when the First World War broke out, and she was taken over by the Royal Navy and renamed HMS Canada. The ship was refitted and handed over to Chile after the hostilities.

Cambrian Salvor is a sister ship of the Sudbury II operated out of Victoria by Island Tug and Barge. On completion of the history-making tow, Cambrian Salvor will return to base at Yokohama, where her operations are directed by a subsidiary company.

City to 'Consider' Miss Victoria Trip

Victoria city would "consider" footing the bill or part of it to send Miss Victoria to the Portland Rose Festival, Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell said yesterday.

But he added he didn't know what the outcome of the consideration would be.

To send 19-year-old Vivi Petersen, her two princesses and a chaperone to the festival opening Tuesday would cost about $400, and Junior Chamber of Commerce officials were hoping yesterday the city would sponsor the trip.

Chamber Hopeful

Airport Work Not Forgotten

Victoria Chamber of Commerce believes that lengthening of runways and construction of a new terminal building at Patricia Bay Airport will take place "within a reasonable time," president G. Conway Parrott said yesterday.

He said that in recent talks with transport department officials at Ottawa he had learned the government wanted assurance from major airlines that they intended to use the airport for larger aircraft.

"I have today sent a letter to the deputy minister of transport along with copies of letters sent to the chamber by TCA and CPA indicating their willingness to consider the landing of transcontinental and Honolulu flights at Victoria International Airport," subject to lengthening of runways.

He said that the chamber is still seeking an official change in the name of the base to Victoria International Airport from its present designation as Patricia Bay Airport.

In his discussions at Ottawa the deputy minister "wanted to know the position of the airlines."

Lengthening the main runway involves relocation of the Patricia Bay Highway and the Chamber of Commerce plans an early interview with B.C. highways minister P. A. Gagliardi to discuss this need.

Referring to the Ottawa talks on the airport Mr. Parrott said: "From our discussion there is every indication that we will get the runway improvement and the new terminal building within a reasonable time."

Mill Aims To Reopen By June 15

Smith Cedar Products Ltd., 651 Harbor Road, which laid off 75 workers Tuesday night following a fire that damaged one of its shingle-dry kilns, may resume production by the middle of June.

Plant superintendent Douglas Blackstock said last night: "We hope to be open on the 15th, or sooner." Most of the workmen, temporarily off the payroll, have applied for unemployment insurance to carry them over.

Total fire damage, believed to be in the thousands of dollars is still not known because salvage has not been completed. Mr. Blackstock said. It was fully covered by insurance, he added.

"I was walking west by Centennial United Church when I heard him coming up behind me. I thought he was going to pass me, but when he came along my left side he knocked me against the fence with his shoulder and jerked the purse from my left hand," she said.

"I'm only five feet tall," Mrs. Schultz said. "He was about six feet tall and all I saw was his black jacket. I don't remember whether I shouted for help, but I chased him across the parsonage yard, through the lane of a nearby auto court and onto Gorge Road, where I lost him. I could tell he knew the district, by the route he took getting away."

After losing the pursesnatcher's trail, Mrs. Schultz telephoned police from the auto court.

When there are few caterpillars there are few places to lay eggs, so the flies become fewer and the caterpillars become more numerous.

So then the flies become more numerous and the caterpillars dwindle.

A complete cycle of this kind takes eight or nine years and the tent caterpillars were last at their tree-disfiguring worst around 1955 in the Victoria area.

This year they are definitely the underdogs or the undercats according to the dictionary. It says their name came from old French for hairy cats.

"They are at about their lowest point right now," federal entomologist Harry Anderson said yesterday. "Besides having the parasites, the caterpillars are subject to disease, and dull, wet weather such as we have had this spring helps in that respect."

"They are the lowest we've seen in years," said city parks administrator W. H. Warren. "We were just discussing it this morning, and I would say they are at an all-time low."

There's an easier way of killing earwigs than dumping them on the ground and running after them with a stick, Mrs. Arthur Whittaker, 2224 Edgemoor, said last night.

She simply empties her

Victoria Rotarians yesterday heard a stout defence of today's schools, their students and their teachers from a guest who spoke with experience.

She was Mrs. Harry L. Smith, wife of the former principal of Victoria High School, herself a former teacher there, and mother of five children who have gone through the same school.

AS A PARENT

"I speak as a parent and wife of a teacher, not as an educationist," she said, and added that, since for almost 50 years her life had been tied in with Victoria High School, her references would largely be to that institution.

Mrs. Smith was critical of "many irresponsible statements made by people who don't know what they're talking about."

Standard of living had gone up in recent years, while unfortunately too often standards of conduct had gone down. More and more it was being left to teachers, to take up the slack—to assume responsibilities that belonged properly to parents.

"We hear most about the students who get into trouble. We hear nothing about the 95 per cent who are not in trouble but are doing very well."

One statement which she said was often heard and quoted was that "we are not proud of graduates of British Columbia schools."

"I AM PROUD"

"I am, emphatically, am very proud of hundreds of graduates—children of relatives, of friends, others."

She recalled many former Victoria High students of whom she was proud.

There were those who had given their lives in two world wars; there were the great athletes over the years; the Johnsons, the Norrises, the Pedens and many more; there were the coaches like George Andrews and Gordon Hartley; both Victoria High graduates; there were many who had gone on to international fame, like Dr. Roy Andrews and Dr. Ira Dillworth.

For scholastic achievements she checked an eight-year period. From 1949 to 1956 Victoria High students stood first in B.C. matriculation exams five times; a sixth was second by 6 per cent.

The other two years of this period, Mrs. Smith said, first place in the province was taken by Oak Bay High students.

"I don't think there can be any criticism of scholarship," she said.

Mrs. Smith attacked two major fallacies: that students today don't know how to read or write; that there is no competition, but that "children's bright minds were allowed to dawdle along."

READ WORDS

Of the first, she said critics claimed children were taught to read words, not letters; that when they encountered a new word they were stumped.

This she refuted by reference to a grandson who "read his way around" quite successfully while still early in Grade 1.

"I have 15 grandchildren," Mrs. Smith said. "I expect to prove and disprove many things through them in the next few years."

SKIP GRADES

Of competition and "dawdling," Mrs. Smith referred to former years when bright students would skip grades, often creating a gap in their education.

Today they had "accelerated" schooling, taking two grades in one year if they were capable of it, but missing nothing.

Children at school with others of different racial background are "years and years ahead of the average person on the street," Mrs. Smith said. "They accept the fact that they are all Canadians."

"This attitude may prove to be more important to the world than all the Sputniks, or than beating the Russians at their own game," Mrs. Smith concluded.

Book sellers who try to lend added credence to their offerings by saying they are endorsed or recommended by the B.C. department of education have no right to do so, according to deputy minister J. F. K. English.

"We don't recommend any books," Mr. English said yesterday after hearing reports that salesmen for a publisher of educational books are using his department as a reference.

Driver of a car that swerved into a rock bluff on the Trans-Canada Highway at Gold-stream Park about 8 last night was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital by Langford ambulance.

Ernest Randall, 3006 Cedar Hill Road, had one or more broken ribs but was in satisfactory condition.

RCMP said the northbound car apparently crossed over the opposite lane on a left-hand curve, hit the stone bluff and came to rest on its right side in the centre of the highway. Mr. Randall was alone in the car.

A single peony bush in the garden of Mrs. Vivienne Paige, 627 Raynor Avenue, grows poppy-like blooms that smell like roses. Neighbors tell the Paiges single peonies are unusual. North Saanich

Grads Abandon All-Night Party

Traditional all-night graduation party will not be held this year by the 27 members of the North Saanich High School graduating class.

Instead, a series of activities covering a three-day period has been planned.

Following graduation ceremonies at 8 o'clock this evening, at which Dr. R. M. Petrie of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory will be guest speaker, a dance will be held in the gymnasium under the sponsorship of the school PTA.

Tomorrow at 6 p.m., the class will play golf at the Ardmore links, with a beach party to follow. Some of the girls who do not wish to attend the beach party have arranged a pajama party.

Sunday morning some of the parents will act as hosts for breakfast and later in the day the group will take part in a boat trip to Pender Island.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann: Two years ago my sister who is 32 fell in love with a married man. They saw each other at work every day and the friendship got out of control. He promised to get a divorce and gave her a ring which she wears constantly. Six months ago his wife invited Sister over for a talk. His wife told her she knew about the affair and that there would be no divorce because of the children. She asked Sister to meet her husband at their home once a week rather than take chances elsewhere. She and the children would be at their country place, she promised. Sister agreed.

I live in fear someone will find out about these immoral trusts and the family reputation will be ruined. Sister once told me she broke up with her lover, but I later learned she lied.

Now she says she has no intention of breaking up with him because he is her whole life. The tension in our family is terrible. What can I do?—VANCOUVER

Forget This Mess

Dear Vancouver: There isn't one thing you can do about your sister, but you can do something about yourself. Forget about this ugly mess and include yourself out of your sister's personal life. When the egg hits the fan—and you can be sure it will—she'll be the splattered one, not you.

Dear Ann: Our son and his fiancée have dinner with us often. Frequently she offers to help me with the dishes and I let her.

The other evening my husband and I decided to go to an early movie and there was no time for me to do the dishes. I was pleased when my son said "Don't worry about the mess, Mom, we'll clean up."

The next day he told me his fiancée was mad because "we treated her like a servant." I was shocked. Do you feel I owe her an apology? I am at a loss as to how to handle this.—F.M.L.

It takes a big person to do "little" things. I once saw the governor of a great state on his hands and knees picking up apples for a woman when her paper sack broke. Other "gentlemen" just stood around, hesitating for fear they might lose a little "dignity."

The girl should be happy she has lost her guest status and is treated as one of the family. You owe her no apology. Her perspective is out of whack.

Hooked Three Times

Dear Ann Landers: Does a girl HAVE to accept a bid to an important dance from the fellow who asks her first? I've been hooked like this three times since January.

A certain guy I will call The Bore manages to get to me first every time and I'm sick of it. He doesn't give anyone else a chance. My mother says I should go with the first one who asks or else say I'm not going out that night, and then stay home. Does this seem fair?—CORNERED.

Dear Cornered: It depends on how far in advance The Bore asks. If, in September he wants to book you for the May dance, tell him you don't plan that far in advance.

On the other hand, after the specific date of the dance is announced, you're stuck if he's the first one on the horn. If other fellows really wanted a date badly enough they'd learn from experience that you're a doll who gets booked early and they'd move a little faster.

Confidential to HANDSOME HARRY: Please don't send me your picture. I'm plenty busy turning out seven columns a week. I can't run a date bureau too. Any guy who is as gorgeous as you say YOU are shouldn't need outside help.

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teenagers if you read Ann Landers' new booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

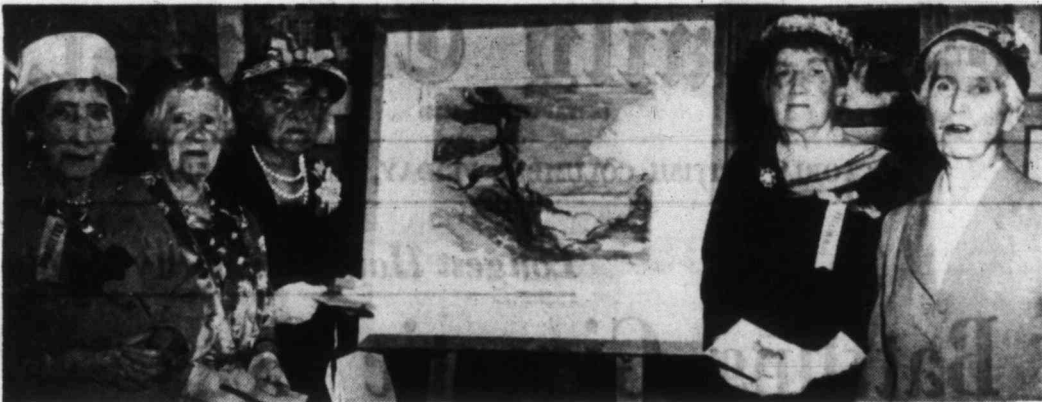

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.)

Groomsman was Mr. Gordon E. Bennett.

Following a luncheon, the new Mrs. Bennett changed into a gold ensemble with aqua topcoat and gold straw hat and the pair left on a wedding trip to the United States.

On returning they will live at 1639 Pembroke Street.

Art Show Marks Club's Birthday

Celebrating a golden anniversary yesterday, Victoria Sketch Club had a birthday cake, presentations of life memberships and a painting for Government House, rain, refreshments — in fact, they had everything but space.

There were over 150 people on hand at the Douglas Room for the opening by Mrs. Ross at the club's jubilee and it presented a traffic problem.

When the ranks cleared it was a fine exhibition.

Mrs. Rose Willis, 92, sometimes called the flower painter of Canada, who occasionally does "landscapes and swims" showed a pastel of a bowl of blue daisies, and a delicate spray of dogwood.

Lillian Sweeney's central exhibit of woodcarvings, mainly birds, was lifelike enough to fly.

Gertrude Snider, whose "Lake Louise" appears on the cover of the program for the three day exhibition has a penchant for ships as evidenced by her watercolors, "Before and After the Swiftsure."

Other notables were Catherine Bilko's cat "Geoffrey," Verna Petrie's "Crowe-Gonna" son" (you can almost smell the smoke.) a haunting work by Hilda Glyde all in mauves, of Christ Church Cathedral.

Colin Graham of the Art Gallery was among the guests.

TOEHOLD ON GROOMING. When a belle steps out in beach fashions, she must put her best foot forward. But it can't be done with a dab of nail polish and a corn plaster.

For a toehold on good grooming, feet require a thoroughgoing, weekly pedicure. The efficient method is this: 1. Remove any enamel, and massage nail cuticles with cuticle oil. 2. Clip nails straight across, even with the ends of the toes, and smooth off with an emery board.

3. Soak feet for 10 minutes. In warm, sudsy water. To remove discolorations, add juice of one lemon to water. 4. During soak, smooth any rough spots on heels with toilet pumice and push back cuticles with cotton-tipped stick. 5. Rinse and dry. 6. Massage feet and legs with lotion. 7. Buff nails, and if desired, apply enamel.

The prettiest pedicure is of little avail, however, unless the feet are free of disfiguring blemishes, such as corns and bunions. But removal is no do-it-yourself affair; it's the undertaking of a chiropodist.

Gathering at the Fairfield Road home of Mrs. Alex Gillespie for a tea following the provincial VON meeting yesterday were Mrs. Roy King of West Vancouver and new president

Include Us in Health Plans VON Asks Canada and B.C.

Hopeful progress for the inclusion of the Victorian Order of Nursing service in the Federal-Provincial Health Plan, was indicated yesterday by Mrs. Dudley Markham, retiring VON president for B.C.

Mrs. Markham was speaking at the annual meeting held in the Art Gallery. Mrs. Roy King, West Vancouver, is the new provincial president.

"It was decided," said Mrs. Markham, "that since hospital insurance for the treatment of acute patients has been in existence in B.C. for some years, the most practical approach for the VON would be to press for a hospital referral system on contractual basis with individual hospitals."

"If agreement could be reached between the provincial and federal governments, provision could be made under the out-patient clauses in the Hospital Insurance and Diagnostic Services Act."

Mrs. Markham said discussions had been held with the Minister of Health, Hon. Eric Martin and the B.C. hospital and medical associations had been approached.

"At the concluding session of the legislature, support was given a resolution regarding the inclusion of the VON in the Act."

"At a final session in March, a bill was placed before the legislature to amend the Hospital Insurance Act to include some out-patient services. This gives us reason to hope for early developments."

In the meantime branches in Vancouver, Victoria, North Vancouver and Burnaby, are developing a referral system with local hospitals.

"Owing to the fact that at present, patients may stay in hospital for a dollar a day, this service cannot grow to any extent unless it is at no charge, and therefore the hospital bed shortage is not appreciably relieved."

Mrs. Markham said 60 nurses in nine branches in B.C. made 136,382 visits in 1958.

"Majority of the chronically ill are pensioners. Therefore we use the total of such visits as the basis of our approach to B.C. for the annual grant. Last year 60,307 visits were made in this category at a cost of $2 each, amounting to $120,614. Provincial grant at the moment stands at $30,000 and this large discrepancy is financed by voluntary funds through Community Chest and other campaigns."

Mrs. Markham said $67,500 has been applied for by the VON for 1959, but as yet the allotment had not been announced.

VON Will Be There

Royal Review Set

To commemorate the 100th anniversary of District Nursing, HM the Queen Mother, grand president of the Victorian Order of Nurses, will hold a review of District Nurses from Great Britain and overseas at Buckingham Palace July 1.

This was announced yesterday by Miss Christine Livingston, Ottawa, director in Chief Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada.

Miss Livingston was speaking at the luncheon in the Art Gallery, in conjunction with the VON annual provincial meeting.

She said three VON nurses would represent the order in England for Queen Elizabeth's Review.

Miss Livingston spoke of the work of the order as "a supplement to the work of the hospitals."

"We have taken skilled nursing care into people's homes for the past 61 years. We are now developing a closer relationship with hospitals through a system of hospital referrals."

The VON director went on to say that today the average lifespan had been extended but at the same time miracles of modern science had created new problems such as an aging population. The care of patients with chronic illness is getting more pressing.

The greatest source of satisfaction to the VON, she said, is strides being taken in rehabilitation work.

"This is the very heart of our service."

Book About Law Urged in Schools

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP)—J. Alex Edmison, member of the National Parole Board, says Canada needs a text-book describing the laws which children are expected to know.
The maxim "ignorance of the law is no excuse" can apply to children in most grades of elementary school, he said.

TENDERS FOR THE USE OF THE CITY FLOAT AT THE CAUSEWAY
AS A BASE FOR OPERATION OF A WATER TOWNSHIP VESSEL, AND BIDS FOR HARBOR CLEARANCE.

(a) Tenders will be received up to 12 noon on June 11th, 1959, by the City Clerk, City Hall, Victoria, B.C., for the exclusive rental of space for the Inner Harbour floats for a water tourist vessel, the vessel being 40 feet in length for the period July 15th to September 15th inclusive.

(b) Tenders are at the same time called for the exclusive rental of floatman from the surface of the Inner Harbour.

Since it is likely that the two operations can most effectively be operated by the same person or persons, it is essential that both items be considered together, and separate offers will be considered.

REVISION OF RURAL WATER PIPE EXTENSION RATES
Please take notice that the Greater Victoria Water District has applied to the Public Utilities Commission for an increase of approximately 12% in the rates charged for the installation of four and six inch pipelines on a Jena improvement basis, in the rural areas serviced by the District. These installations are made only on existing roads.

In new areas or subdivisions the subscriber or other parties concerned by the cost of water pipe installations cash in advance. Where a new pipe is required to reach the subdivision, the subscriber or parties concerned will be required to pay in full, cash in advance for this pipe; where there exists to the new subdivided area a pipeline too small or too old, the subscriber or parties concerned and the District shall proportionately costs between themselves.

Manning Seeks Fifth Term in Alberta

Veteran Premier at 51 Prefers Bible to Politics

EDMONTON (CP)—Premier Ernest Charles Manning, a veteran politician at 51, on June 18 will lead Alberta's Social Credit party for the fifth time in a provincial general election.

The party has been in power since 1935 when, at 26, Mr. Manning became the Commonwealth's youngest cabinet minister.

He continued to plump for monetary reform under Social Credit and also took over Mr. Aberhart's weekly religious broadcasts.

When Mr. Aberhart died, Mr. Manning at 34 became the Commonwealth's youngest premier.

He became premier in 1943 following the death of Hon. William Aberhart and has held office ever since, a record for continuous service unmatched by present Canadian premiers.

Despite his success, the premier, evangelist and farmer does not like election campaigning. "It produces too much criticism and never gets to the point of issues," Mr. Manning, who says he prefers teaching the Bible to politics, saw his party's representation in the legislature reduced to 37 from 52 seats in the 1955 general election.

He was 18 when a radio was first brought into his farm home at Carnduff, Sask. He heard a religious broadcast by Mr. Aberhart of the Calgary Prophetic Bible Institute and was so impressed he went to Calgary to become a student of the institute.

Mr. Manning became the first graduate of the institute and Mr. Aberhart's right-hand man. When Mr. Aberhart became the first Social Credit

UN Chief Backs Canadian Plan

For Observer Teams in Berlin

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has won support from United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld for its plan for a UN role in Berlin, informants say.

At the NATO meeting at Washington in April, Canada proposed that the UN might play a useful role in Berlin—provided a four-power agreement is reached first.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said in the Commons April 7: "The basic role of the UN might be to verify that all parties were abiding by the terms of the agreement."

An essential part of the agreement might be a Soviet pledge binding itself and its associates to full freedom of access to West Berlin and the acceptance of a UN presence on the lines of communication to that city.

Informants here say that what Canada has in mind is definitely not a UN force similar to the one now serving on the Egyptian-Israeli frontier but rather a judicial or appeal body similar to the true supervisory commissions in Indonesia.

Mr. Hammarskjöld, it is understood, is opposed to establishment of any UN garrison in Berlin but endorses the idea of UN observers being stationed there and along the lines of communication once the Big Four reach an agreement—if they do.

U.K. 'Flying Saucer' To Skim Across Sea

COWES, Eng. (AP)—

The machine skims a few feet above the waves on a cushion of air. This first model is just a small saucer of polished aluminum 30 feet long and 25 feet wide.

It makes its maiden voyage on June 11. Few persons have seen it. Publicly, only the simplest details are known. It has been one of British aviation's most tightly guarded secrets.

A conventional piston engine of 450 horsepower draws air through an intake at the top of the machine and blows it out the bottom.

Air pressure built up beneath the machine lifts it. An increase in pressure creates an air cushion beneath the craft and on this it skates.

It is the sea-saucer, a hybrid aircraft and ship that its designers believe could be the forerunner of giant craft revolutionizing air travel.

Red Prisons Make U.S. Jails 'Archaic'

NEW YORK (UPI)—New York Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz reported yesterday that the Russian prison system he inspected last summer is so remarkably advanced "as to make our American methods seem positively archaic."

Leibowitz, writing in Life magazine, found Russian justice "generally bleak and disheartening" and subject to dictatorial whim. He said the vast majority of prisoners are released as "useful and reformed citizens."

LIVING WAGE
He said the prisoners earn the same money for their prison jobs that they would for similar jobs outside, pay for their own board, support their families and usually save something for the time of their release. Wives are permitted to visit their husbands in special quarters for two or three days each month, traveling at government expense.

Leibowitz said that in the prison he visited, convicts slept in dormitories, had great freedom of lightly guarded grounds and seldom attempted escape.

He said, "They do not have the beaten, shamed look of the Welfare Cheats Warned

"Assaults on welfare funds of the city" drew fire yesterday from Magistrate William Ostler in city police court.

Before him were three such cases, each involving immigrants from Europe now living here. Each pleaded guilty.

OWNED CAR

Bela Vargady, 217 Quebec, was fined $50 after admitting making a false declaration in a request for social assistance. He told William Hooson, city welfare administrator, that he didn't own a car when in fact he did.

"You would have been entitled to social assistance in any event if you had told the truth," Magistrate Ostler told accused. "You just could not have driven the car while receiving social assistance."

SERIOUS MATTER

"In spite of this, the making of a false statement of any kind is a most serious matter."

Lajos Balog, 2640 Rose, was placed under bond of $500 for six months after admitting he obtained $52.50 in welfare by false pretences, in January and February.

FAILED TO REPORT

He had failed to report advances on salary received. Sentence was suspended on the basis of a good probation report and on the fact that restitution had been made.

"Such assaults on welfare funds of the city must cease," said the magistrate, "or there will be a much more severe penalty."

RECEIVED $450

Willi Bradasch, 6052 Bear Hill, was remanded to June 9 for a probation report and sentence after admitting receiving $450 in social assistance by false pretences.

Mr. Hooson told the court Bradasch had received social assistance from April 1 to July 31, 1958, for himself and his family, then had applied for and been granted assistance again on Nov. 17.

JOBLESS PAY

From then until March 31, 1959, he drew $176.50 welfare aid each month.

On Dec. 14, 1958, Bradasch became eligible for unemployment insurance, which he received without notifying the welfare department. The $450 represented overpayments by that department from Dec. 14 to March 31 of this year.

REPAY AMOUNT

Asked if he had anything to say, Bradasch replied through an interpreter that in his own country it was common practice for those receiving social assistance to repay the amount when they were able to do so. This had been his intention, too, he said.

At Sidney

Completion Of Wharf Delayed

The new federal government ferry wharf at Sidney won't be completed by mid-August, as scheduled, the general contractors said yesterday.

Delay was caused by the government's decision to call for tenders on additional buildings for the ferry terminal at a cost of some $16,000. These include a customs and immigration building, and a comfort station.

"LITTLE LONGER"

A spokesman for the contractors, Pacific Piledriving Co. Ltd., said the job was now expected to take "a little longer" but he declined to give a new completion date.

The $266,710 contract awarded by the federal public works department specified completion by Aug. 17. Tenders have already been called for subcontracts on the new buildings. Delays aren't expected to amount to more than a few weeks.

FIR PILING

Original plans for the ferry terminal included a toll booth and pedestrian waiting room. The wharf itself has timber approach and wharf sections, transfer span with apron, and dolphins of fir piling.

The dock will be used by Washington State Ferries Sidney-Anacortes service, and starting next year, the B.C. government's fast ferries to the mainland.

Don't Split NATO

LONDON (CP)—The Canadian delegation to the Atlantic congress opening here Friday warns that the development of a restrictive-oriented free trade area in Europe could easily lead to a split between Canada and some of the NATO allies.

The concern was expressed in a number of working papers submitted to the congress—a six-day conference of roughly 600 delegates from NATO countries convened to draft the outlines of future policies for the Atlantic alliance.

"ROSY GLOW"

Arthur J. R. Smith, director of research of the Private Planning Association of Canada, and George F. Delany of the aluminum union suggest in their papers that there has been "too much rosy glow" about the possible effects on North America of the common market.

They foresee the danger that European community may tend to foster regional trade at the expense of wider trading arrangements.

"SOLIDARITY"

Economist Lawrence E. Kindt, Conservative member of Parliament for MacLeod, Alta., expresses the hope in another paper that Western European nations striving for economic integration will take steps to ensure that their initiative in this field "will be consistent with NATO solidarity."

Smith and Delany warn of dangers for Canada and the United States in the possible development of discriminatory trading arrangements between Common Market countries and selected ones outside—possibly even members of the Soviet bloc.

Forestry's Reply to IWA

Export Difficulties 'Tower Above All'

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia's forest management, arguing before a consultation board why the International Woodworkers of America shouldn't be granted a 20 per cent wage increase, said Thursday its main problem is that of "remaining competitive in export markets."

Forest Industrial Relations, speaking for 138 lumber firms in the dispute, said the export market problem "towered above all others in absolute prominence."

The board's hearings began Thursday less than two weeks before the June 16 expiry date of the present contract governing the 26,500 coast lumber workers.

The union's wage demands would bring the basic rate in the industry to $2.06 an hour from $1.72.

FIR argues that other industries can pass along labor costs to domestic consumers. But the lumber industry can't, because it's dependent on export markets.

The union had argued that world prices for Canadian lumber have increased and show an upward trend.

Rioters Aid Police To Stop Looting

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (AP)—Students blamed for touching off riots that claimed 23 lives in Guayaquil were hailed Thursday for switching to the government's side to suppress looting.

Meanwhile, in Managua, the Nicaraguan government put an economic band on the five-day-old revolution, saying that invaders were financed by "local capitalists."

At the same time a government crackdown on merchants appeared to have broken the back of a general strike.

CHANCELLOR ADENAUER ... changes mind

Adenauer To Stay

BONN (Reuters)—Konrad Adenauer intends to remain West German chancellor instead of becoming president later in the summer, a party official announced last night. The chancellor's change of mind, following his decision two months ago to leave the chancellorship to become president, landed like a bombshell in the political scene.

Informed sources said Adenauer's move was to keep the government from splitting in a fight over his successor.

Montreal Councillor:

Police Protect Car Theft Ring

MONTREAL (UPI)—A Montreal city councillor charged yesterday that a large size car theft ring is operating under police protection because of the fast reappearance of his own vehicle, 15 hours after it was stolen.

Jean Meunier, in making the charge, said he believed the gang was operating under police protection because his own white Cadillac was recovered 15 hours after it was stolen, painted black and with all serial numbers removed.

He claimed members of the police stolen auto squad told him that they called the gang and made them understand that the Cadillac in question belonged to a city father.

He quoted members of the squad as saying that they told the gang that if the car was not returned "we'd book the whole gang for the weekend."

Meunier said he was convinced the only reason he got the car back was because he was a city councillor.

An investigation of the charges was ordered.

Cancer Society

Tobacco War Declared

BOSTON (UPI)—The American Cancer Society yesterday voted to wage a massive anti-smoking campaign, aimed mostly at teen-agers.

The society's board of directors called for more vigorous efforts to "bring to the attention of physicians and the public—and particularly teen-agers—facts about cancer and smoking."

Dr. Howard C. Taylor, chairman of the society's special committee on tobacco and cancer, reported that the society's staff had been directed to prepare plans and estimates of costs for a "total educational effort toward modification of the smoking habit in a community."

PREPARE STUDIES

The society's staff also was directed to prepare studies of smokers and non-smokers and "those physiologic and psychological, and social factors responsible for the initiation, continuation, and cessation of smoking."

In New York, the chairman of the tobacco industry research committee said the anti-smoking campaign was a "one-sided propaganda effort."

Chamber to Press Councils to Act

By TERRY HAMMOND

Evidence was strong here yesterday that ratepayers in the four incorporated areas which make up Greater Victoria will vote on the burning issue of fluoridation in December.

Public affairs committee of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce will approach the councils of Oak Bay, Saanich, Esquimalt and Victoria soon to learn whether they will agree to place fluoridation referendums before their electorates this year.

A quick poll of some key members of the four councils late yesterday showed that if ratepayers show a reasonable degree of enthusiasm to vote on the controversial issue they will definitely get the chance.

And the Colonist learned from Ronald A. Upward, chief commissioner for the Greater Victoria Water District, that fluoridated water could be flowing through the mains within 18 months if ratepayers give the measure the 60 per cent approval it needs to pass.

$100,000 Installation

Cost of an installation to fluoridate the water supply for the district's 40,000 consumers would run to $100,000.

Operating cost, including retirement of debt and payment of interest, would run about $30,000 a year, or less than $1 per consumer.

Eric Mallett, chairman of the public affairs committee of the Chamber of Commerce, said his group has been studying the dental health proposal for some time with a view to asking the four councils to place the matter before the ratepayers.

Only one of the key council figures reached yesterday was less than enthusiastic about holding a referendum, and he agreed it will be done if ratepayers ask for it.

Reeve George Murdoch of Oak Bay said he didn't agree with the theory of mass medication.

"Just because I need a dose of castor oil is no reason why you should have to take a dose of castor oil, too," he said.

Attack on Earwigs

He said he thought the fluoridation movement might be a hidden flanking attack on the earwig population.

"Maybe they are trying to kill the earwigs—sodium fluoride is what they kill earwigs with," he said.

But he added, "If the people of Oak Bay express a desire to vote on it, we would let them do it."

Victoria's acting mayor Arthur Dowell said of a public referendum, "That's the only way to settle the thing."

He said he did not believe the council as a whole would take a firm position on what the outcome of a public vote on fluoridation should be, "but some councillors would probably take a stand."

"Personally, I've heard so much for and against it, I don't know what to think," he added.

Adding Reeve George Austin of Saanich said "council would have no alternative" to placing a referendum before the people "if such a request came from the ratepayers and the other councils."

No Objection to Vote

Reeve A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt said he wouldn't have any objection to a referendum if public opinion demands one.

"The experts tell us we should have fluoridation," he said.

"I am certainly swayed by what the dentists say about it, but I can't say whether I would vote for it or against it."

"But if there is to be a referendum in December there should be some indication from the electorate fairly soon if people are to be able to vote intelligently," he added.

Oak Bay is the only one of the four incorporated areas which could go it alone on fluoridation if the move was blocked in one of the other municipalities, the water district commissioner said.

Oak Bay is fed by a single main, but the other three municipalities are connected by a complex network of lines which would mean they could not fluoridate independently.

PINEVILLE, W. Va. (AP)—A 15-year-old boy has nabbed an odd freak—a cat with a wing-like growth.

Douglas Shelton said he was in the woods the other day when he noticed the animal tread by a dog.

The female cat has two wings, each about six inches long. They appear to be boneless but evidently cartilage gives them their shape.

Railways Need Trade

Senator Urges Ban On Freight Trucks

'Friendship' Visit Paid By Nikita

BUDAPEST, Hungary (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev arrived yesterday for an informal "visit of friendship."

Welcoming ceremonies were held to a minimum, to stress the informality of Khrushchev's first visit to Hungary since April 1958.

OTTAWA (CP)—A Saskatchewan Progressive Conservative senator said Thursday all freight business in Canada should go to the railways and that trucks should be banned from highways.

Senator Ralph Horner, a farmer, said in the Senate the railways are necessary and that they would be in a healthy position if they received all the freight business.

The railways should be given the freight business that rightfully belongs to them "and the highways should be left for the purpose for which they were designed—private passenger car travel."

Wanted: Pennants

An appeal for Canadian pennants to make jackets like the one he is wearing, was made yesterday by James Carlson, 17, president of the Junior Red Cross at Cowichan High School. He goes to the Red Cross international convention in Toronto in August and hopes to get as many pennants as possible to make jackets that will be given to delegates from outside the country to advertise Canada. Pennants may be left at the Colonist's 30 Kenneth Street office, the high school office, or mailed to Mrs. Heather Bulcock, Box 1049, Duncan. — (Colonist photo by Charles Thompson.)

Council Drops Letter

Angry Taxpayer Is 'Uninformed'

CROFTON — A letter from an irate taxpayer charging that council is bound in "red tape" and not keeping its promise to pave streets in the Brooks subdivision here was dropped as "uninformed" by the council.

I. L. Cockburn, 1568 Pauline, said for a year council has had money included in the purchase price of his land in the subdivision and has done "nothing" toward paving the streets.

Works chairman Coun. Donald Morton said the municipality did not have the land turned over to it from B.C. Forest Products Ltd. until late last fall.

He said in the little time before the weather became too wet, the main roads on the subdivision were done and that the rest of the roads were on a "top priority" list for this summer when work can be done on them.

Walk Work Rushed

CHEMANUS—The job of building a sidewalk on Chemanus Road has been awarded to Cowichan Construction Ltd. of Duncan.

Promoter Met at Crossroads As Gangland Exacts Revenge

Pardon My Glove

Doc's 'Operation' Saved Toy Bulldog

Ned Brown is one of the greats of ring-side writing. An old-timer who knew boxing intimately during its golden age, he has been president of the Boxing Writers' Association (1958) and now is a member of the board of directors of the BWA. He began writing for the old New York World before the turn of the century and his column for that newspaper, "Pardon My Glove," became one of the most widely read ones in the country. The following is the first of five articles written by Brown, who has drawn from his thick supply of anecdotal and personal recollections, on some boxing matches and personalities he will never forget.

By NED BROWN

NEW YORK (NANA) — It was night onto 30 years ago that Jack "Doc" Kearns, last and liveliest of the colorful fight managers of boxing's Golden Era, saved his middleweight champion, Mickey Walker, the "Toy Bulldog," from ignominious defeat.

Riding high, wide and handsome in 1930, Kearns decided he and his fighter should grace the Kentucky Derby with their presence. "We'll have a high old time," the Doc told Mickey, "so in order to have backsheesh to wager on the winner of the derby, I have signed you up for a bout that will be a 'breather' for you and will net us a guarantee of 10 grand."

So on Kentucky Derby eve, May 16, Mickey sat in the ring of the Louisville fight club, facing one Paul Swiderski, a Polish-American battler out of Syracuse, managed by Harry Lenny, himself a nationally known pilot of fighters.

Louisville was crowded with a horde of some 30,000 racing fans, and after mingling with numerous friends during the afternoon, Doc and his tiger were farin' to go. On arriving at the arena, Kearns sought out the promoter and asked:

"Who you got to referee?"

"Well, Marvin Hart is here and so is Ed Dickerson. Which do you prefer?"

"Neither," snapped Kearns. "I want Tod Wilkerson there, to referee my fight," he said.

"Right there and then I knew things weren't gonna be kosher for my side," Lenny told me in reviewing the harrowing events of that night some years later.

"I'd never heard of this Wilkerson or whatever his name was, before or since. But I had trained Paul well for this fight. I knew he was strictly a one-punch guy who could throw a right cross through a knothole with dynamite in it. So I give him his instructions. 'Belt him out with the right as soon as you get in reach of him—don't spare the hosses in gettin' there.'"

At the sound of the bell, both fighters sprang forward and as they crashed together Swiderski shot his right "through the knothole," landing flush on Mickey's chin. Simultaneously, Walker's lethal left hook caught Paul on the jaw and both fighters hit the deck.

The double knockdown brought the howling spectators to their feet and sparked more excitement than any fight since the crackling Dempsey-Firpo epic at the Polo Grounds seven years before.

With Walker flattened on the canvas and Swiderski rising from it, Kearns added fuel to the flame of excitement by shouting instructions to the referee. It so befuddled the official he ceased counting and stood gaping helplessly until Walker staggered to his feet after a 20-second rest.

Swiderski wasted no time in uncorking another explosive right, again dropping Walker. This time the Toy Bulldog took no more than 12 seconds to resume a perpendicular stance, only to receive another haymaker that plopped him to the canvas for the third knockdown and completely out.

Whereupon the nimble-witted Doc changed from vocal to physical action. Diving under the ring he disconnected the switchbox controlling the lights over the ring and plunged the arena into darkness.

Soon after the start of the second round Swiderski again connected with his right and Mickey took his fourth trip to the canvas. Now, however, he was becoming "acclimated" to the punch, and when he arose he resumed fighting with surprising vigor. So much so that when the gong sounded ending the round Mickey continued battling and the referee was powerless to stop the milling.

The seconds and handlers from both sides entered the melee with gusto and when the policemen around the ring-side entered the fray there ensued a "cops-and-robbers" fracas that would warm the heart of any latterday TV director.

The third round found Swiderski enervated by his extra efforts and Mickey was, by way of gaining the upperhand when Paul flung another "knothole" and Mickey bounced as he hit the canvas. It looked like curtains for the Toy Bulldog as the round had more than half a minute to go.

But Kearns again came to the rescue. He ran over to the timekeeper's bell and banged it with a water bottle, halting the action and netting his fighter a much needed surcease. The rest of the fight, which went the 10 rounds punctuated when necessary by Doc's usurpation of the timekeeper's function as bell ringer, was anticlimactic.

At pay-off time the promoter reported the gate had proved disappointing and he stood to lose $3,000 on the promotion. Whereupon Jack Kearns did something entirely out of character. He cut his guarantee down to $7,000!

"It was more fun than a barrel of monkeys," said he. "Me and Mickey enjoyed it immensely. And we don't want to leave anybody with any regrets."

Upon hearing of that last remark of the Doc's, Harry Lenny and his Tiger Swiderski boasted, "Nerts!"

LOS ANGELES—The underworld's shadow over boxing took on solid and frightening form here late Wednesday night when mobsters attacked fight promoter Jackie Leonard and left him critically injured in his own garage minutes after he had dismissed his special police guard.

Leonard had been under special police protection since May 20, when he touched off an explosive inquiry into the fight game in southern California by testifying that, as promoter at Hollywood Legion Stadium, he was an unwilling go-between for underworld fight czars Frankie Carbo and Blinky Palermo and Don Neseath, manager of welterweight champion Don Jordan. Neseath also testified that he had been threatened following the Jordan-Virgil Akins rematch in St. Louis when he refused to turn over 15 per cent of the purse.

Carbo was arrested last week on a charge of being an undercover fight promoter and manager, but has since been released on bail.

WERENT FOOLING Wednesday the underworld struck back in what police termed a "planned assault." Leonard had dismissed his police guard, saying he did not intend to go out again, but left the house to get a newspaper. He was found later by his wife, suffering from concussion of the brain and partial paralysis after being beaten with a metal instrument.

"I pulled the car into the garage and got out," Leonard told police from his hospital bed. "I heard footsteps and thought it was my wife. Something hit me from behind, then somebody grabbed me and hit me again. I was knocked to my knees, and they began kicking me."

Leonard said he believed he was attacked by two men but did not get a look at them. He had been receiving threatening telephone calls since his testimony.

"Carbo told me that we'll meet at the crossroads," Leonard had testified at the hearing. "You're going to get hurt," he told me. "We're going to make an example of you."

Leonard said underworld interests are of the impression that he owns part of Jordan's contract. This, he claims, is not true. Neseath was approached by mobsters twice to turn over half his interest in Jordan, but apparently hasn't been cowed by the vicious attack on Leonard. Asked if he had any idea who did it, he replied:

"Hell, yes, I have an idea who's behind it. Everybody knows. He may not have hired the men who did the job, but the whole mess is his fault. The sooner we get rid of these kind of people, the better off we'll all be. The police can't do it all."

Over in the National League, San Francisco Giants finally caught up with Lew Burdette, who had beaten them 13 straight times in a string reaching back to 1954.

With sophomore first-base man Orlando Cepeda doing almost all the damage by driving in seven runs with his 11th and 12th home runs and two other hits, the Giants knocked off Milwaukee's leading Braves 11-5.

Result left the Giants only two and a half games out of the lead and enabled the fast-moving Pittsburgh Pirates to get solidly into contention, only a game further back, with a 9-3 rout of St. Louis Cardinals. It was the sixth win in a row for the Pirates and their 12th victory in the last 15 games.

Seven Clubs Fear Worst As Yanks Start to Move

Are things returning to normal in the American League?

That's what seven clubs are fearing as the New York Yankees, in their first real drive of the season, continue to get the combination of hitting and pitching which has put them in the world series in nine out of the last 10 years.

Yesterday, the defending champions made it seven victories in their last nine games by walloping Detroit Tigers, 14-2, with a display of power-hitting and steady pitching, by Whitey Ford, who won his sixth game in nine decisions.

Ford scattered seven hits and struck out 12.

Other milestone in a great career when one went for a double. It was his 61st two-base clout, and tied him with Honus Wagner for the all-time National League lead. Only American Leaguers, Ty Cobb (724) have hit more doubles than Musial.

Los Angeles Dodgers failed to keep pace with the Giants and Pirates, losing a 5-3 decision to Cincinnati Reds.

Victory didn't move the Yankees out of seventh place but they are now only two percentage points away from fifth place, four and a half games out of the lead and three wins away from balancing their record for the season.

"Dimitriyeva has a sharply defined attacking style of play. Her bold sorties to the net and her very strong, masculine volleys make her a most dangerous opponent," Tass said.

Andre Potanin, 19, also played in the Wimbledon junior competition last year and will make the trip to Britain again this season. He lost in the quarter-finals in the 1958 Wimbledon junior men's tourney.

The agency said Lejus ranked ninth among Soviet men last year but that his game now "has been transformed beyond recognition." Tass said Lejus, a native of Tallin, defeated Sergey Andre- yev, for many years the Russian champion, last winter and has not been beaten this year.

Lejus has given up all passive action on the baseline and now boldly runs up to the net immediately after the service. His play is distinctive by his flexible tactics and his splendid physical condition enables him to play for two or three hours at a furious pace," Tass said.

Tug, Warship Heave-to

Epic Tow Battling Gigantic Seas

Mountainous seas forced the Victoria-owned tug Cambrian Salvor to heave-to for 48 hours in gale-lashed seas off the coast of Chile with a 30,000-ton battleship in tow.

Skipper James Van Comodo radioed Island Tug and Barge here yesterday with news that the Cambrian Salvor was again making five knots despite heavy seas. The epic voyage combines one of the longest tows in nautical history with one of the largest ships ever to be strung on the end of a deep-sea towline.

The 10,000-mile haul from Concepcion, Chile, to Japan, where the battleship will be broken up for scrap, is expected to take more than three months. Bad weather dogged the endeavor from the start. There was a five-day delay before the tow could get under way May 29, while winter gales howled outside the harbor.

The salvage ship and its tow battled high seas for three days before it was forced to heave-to and wait out the worst of the gale. Five of the 32-man salvage crew are on the former Chilean battleship Almirante Latorre.

The battleship was under construction in a British yard when the First World War broke out, and she was taken over by the Royal Navy and renamed HMS Canada. The ship was refitted and handed over to Chile after the hostilities. Cambrian Salvor is a sister ship of the Sudbury II operated out of Victoria by Island Tug and Barge. On completion of the history-making tow, Cambrian Salvor will return to base at Yokohama, where her operations are directed by a subsidiary company.

Victoria Repair Firm Fined in Nanaimo

NANAIMO (CP)—A house repair firm working out of Victoria was fined a total of $60 in police court Thursday for operating here without a licence.

It was alleged the house repair firm solicited business here, then applied for a licence, which was turned down.

Pool Planned For Courtenay

COURTENAY—A campaign to raise funds for construction of a 20 by 40-foot wading pool adjacent to the present swimming pool in Lewis Park has passed the one-quarter mark, officials announced yesterday.

More than $1,200 of the $4,000 needed has been raised, including a $500 grant from the BPO Elks, and an additional $500, the result of a two-night canvass of the Sandwick and Roydon areas. Highlight of the drive will be a parade through Courtenay streets tonight, followed by a band concert in Lewis Park at 8.30 p.m.

CHEMAINUS—Reeve C. A. P. Murlison has suggested the Chemainus Chamber of Commerce folder advertising this district be included in one being put out by the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce.

It is expected to be one of the topics at a meeting tonight of the local chamber.

The reeve explained yesterday to council that he had made the suggestion so both units do not have to go to the expense of covering the same ground.

He said the Duncan book has a Chemainus section and that the Chemainus group might as well put their money in it and expand it a little.

Other Island News Pages 8 and 9

NANAIMO—Nanaimo RCMP say no charges will be laid against a seven-year-old boy who is alleged to have lit six fires in a Nanaimo home Thursday.

The fires were discovered in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Clark, by her young son.

NANAIMO—The Law Society of British Columbia and the B.C. section of the Canadian Bar Association will hold a joint convention here June 25 and 26.

Parksville Firehall

PARKSVILLE—Tenders will soon be called for the construction of Parksville's new firehall which is to be built adjacent to the Parkview Shell Service station.

Approval was given by the village council to plans submitted by the architect, H. James White of Nanaimo.

Final date for the submission of tenders will be left to the discretion of Mr. White but the council suggested either June 22 or June 29.

At the same meeting council also approved the appointment of Dr. C. J. G. McKenzie as health officer for Parksville.

A request will be sent to the Vancouver Island Health

Unit for the mobile TB unit to visit Parksville this summer.

Permission was granted the Air Cadet Corps to sell first aid kits on the streets of Parksville.

A grant of $200 was voted by the council for Parksville Recreation Commission for this year.

DUNCAN—Farmer Construction Co. Ltd. has been given an extra $990 to cover additional work necessary when the company ran into quicksand while building the city's new pumping station.

Council ratified the expense earlier this week. It is the difference between the company's bid and the next lowest bidder.

Nanaimo Swim Classes

NANAIMO—Swim classes sponsored by the Nanaimo Swim Club will start during the week of June 15. The life saving classes will get underway at a later date.

Here are dates, location and instructors in charge of the classes.

Juniors—Thursday, Westwood Lake, Claire Harnam instructor.

Intermediates—Harewood Dam, Tuesday, instructor Thelma Nicholls.

Seniors—Harewood Dam, Tuesday, instructor Jean Tully.

Fuller's Lake Project

CHEMAINUS—Junior high school students will give the community park project at Fuller's Lake a big boost this weekend, weather permitting.

In answer to an appeal from park committee chairman Harry Ewart, more than 100 junior high school students have volunteered to help rake and clean up the picnic site in the seven-acre park that will be opened to the public later this month.

The park committee has promised to have refreshments in the nature of soft drinks, ice cream and hot dogs for the volunteer workers.

Mr. Ewart said that when he asked principal Donald McKay to see if the students would be interested in helping with the park project, he hadn't expected such interest or enthusiasm.

"The kids realize that they too will get a lot of enjoyment and pleasure out of the park facilities and have shown that they are more than willing to do their share of work. I think it's just terrific and their efforts will make it a real community project."

Don't Split NATO

LONDON (CP) — The Canadian delegation to the Atlantic congress opening here Friday warns that the development of a restrictive-oriented free trade area in Europe could easily lead to a split between Canada and some of the NATO allies.

The concern was expressed in a number of working papers submitted to the congress—a six-day conference of roughly 600 delegates from NATO countries convened to draft the outlines of future policies for the Atlantic alliance.

"ROSY GLOW"

Arthur J. R. Smith, director of research of the Private Planning Association of Canada, and George F. Delany of the aluminum union suggest in their papers that there has been "too much rosy glow" about the possible effects on North America of the common market.

They foresee the danger that European community may tend to foster regional trade at the expense of wider trading arrangements.

"SOLIDARITY"

Economist Lawrence E. Kindt, Conservative member of Parliament for MacLeod, Alta., expresses the hope in another paper that Western European nations striving for economic integration will take steps to ensure that their initiative in this field "will be consistent with NATO solidarity."

Smith and Delany warn of dangers for Canada and the United States in the possible development of discriminatory trading arrangements between Common Market countries and selected ones outside—possibly even members of the Soviet bloc.

Forestry's Reply to IWA

Export Difficulties 'Tower Above All'

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's forest management, arguing before a conciliation board why the International Woodworkers of America shouldn't be granted a 20 per cent wage increase, said Thursday its main problem is that of "remaining competitive in export markets."

Forest Industrial Relations, speaking for 138 lumber firms in the dispute, said the export market problem "towers above all others in absolute pre-eminence."

The board's hearings began Thursday less than two weeks before the June 16 expiry date of the present contract governing the 26,500 coast lumber workers.

The union's wage demands would bring the basic rate in the industry to $2.06 an hour from $1.72. FIR argues that other industries can pass along labor costs to domestic consumers. But the lumber industry can't, because it's dependent on export markets.

The union had argued that world prices for Canadian lumber have increased and show an upward trend.

Rioters Aid Police To Stop Looting

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (AP) — Students blamed for touching off riots that claimed 23 lives in Guayaquil were hailed Thursday for switching to the government's side to suppress looting.

Meanwhile, in Managua, the Nicaraguan government put an economic ban on the five-day-old revolution, saying that invaders were financed by "local capitalists."

At the same time a government crackdown on merchants appeared to have broken the back of a general strike.

Stop the Ambulance! Cries Logger —Get Me a Couple of Hamburgers

They make 'em tough in the Jordan River logging camps. "Man, I'm hungry," said tree feller Emil Barbanus after being carried by stretcher seven miles out from the woods where his leg was broken in a logging accident. And then he made the West Coast Ambulance stop outside his home at Jordan River so his wife could give him a couple of hamburgers before continuing on to Royal Jubilee Hospital in Victoria for treatment.

A spokesman for Canadian Puget Sound Logging Co. said last night that it appeared Barbanus had slipped after falling a tree and that the tree flipped back against him. The firm was notified of the accident at 4:10 p.m. "It didn't take us long to get in to him, but it took several hours carrying him out," said the spokesman.

Montreal Councillor:

Police Protect Car Theft Ring

MONTREAL (UPI)—A Montreal city councillor charged yesterday that a large size car theft ring is operating under police protection because of the fast reappearance of his own vehicle, 15 hours after it was stolen.

Jean Meunier, in making the charge, said he believed the gang was operating under police protection because his own white Cadillac was recovered 15 hours after it was stolen, painted black and with all serial numbers removed.

He claimed members of the police stolen auto squad told him that they called the gang and made them understand that the Cadillac in question belonged to a city father.

He quoted members of the squad as saying that they told the gang that if the car was not returned "we'd book the whole gang for the weekend."

Meunier said he was convinced the only reason he got the car back was because he was a city councillor.

An investigation of the charges was ordered.

Cancer Society

Tobacco War Declared

BOSTON (UPI)—The American Cancer Society yesterday voted to wage a massive anti-smoking campaign, aimed mostly at teenagers.

The society's board of directors called for more vigorous efforts to "bring to the attention of physicians and the public—and particularly teenagers—facts about cancer and smoking."

Dr. Howard C. Taylor, chairman of the society's special committee on tobacco and cancer, reported that the society's staff had been directed to prepare plans and estimates of costs for a "total educational effort toward modification of the smoking habit in a community."

PREPARE STUDIES

The society's staff also was directed to prepare studies of smokers and non-smokers and "those physiologic and psychological, and social factors responsible for the initiation, continuation, and cessation of smoking."

In New York, the chairman of the tobacco industry research committee said the anti-smoking campaign was a "one-sided propaganda effort."

December Poll Sought

By TERRY HAMMOND

Evidence was strong here yesterday that ratepayers in the four incorporated areas which make up Greater Victoria will vote on the burning issue of fluoridation in December.

Public affairs committee of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce will approach the councils of Oak Bay, Saanich, Esquimalt and Victoria soon to learn whether they will agree to place fluoridation referendums before their electorates this year.

A quick poll of some key members of the four councils late yesterday showed that if ratepayers show a reasonable degree of enthusiasm to vote on the controversial issue they will definitely get the chance. And the Colonist learned from Ronald A. Upward, chief commissioner for the Greater Victoria Water District, that fluoridated water could be flowing through the mains within 18 months if ratepayers give the measure the 60 per cent approval it needs to pass.

$100,000 Installation

Cost of an installation to fluoridate the water supply for the district's 40,000 consumers would run to $100,000.

Operating cost, including retirement of debt and payment of interest, would run about $30,000 a year, or less than $1 per consumer.

Eric Mallett, chairman of the public affairs committee of the Chamber of Commerce, said his group has been studying the dental health proposal for some time with a view to asking the four councils to place the matter before the ratepayers.

Only one of the key council figures reached yesterday was less than enthusiastic about holding a referendum, and he agreed it will be done if ratepayers ask for it.

Reeve George Murdoch of Oak Bay said he didn't agree with the theory of mass medication.

"Just because I need a dose of castor oil is no reason why you should have to take a dose of castor oil, too," he said.

Attack on Earwigs

He said he thought the fluoridation movement might be a hidden flanking attack on the earwig population.

"Maybe they are trying to kill the earwigs—sodium fluoride is what they kill earwigs with," he said.

But he added, "If the people of Oak Bay express a desire to vote on it, we would let them do it."

Victoria's acting mayor Arthur Dowell said of a public referendum, "That's the only way to settle the thing."

He said he did not believe the council as a whole would take a firm position on what the outcome of a public vote on fluoridation should be, "but some councillors would probably take a stand."

"Personally, I've heard so much for and against it, I don't know what to think," he added.

Acting reeve George Austin of Saanich said "council would have no alternative" to placing a referendum before the people "if such a request came from the ratepayers and the other councils."

No Objection to Vote

Reeve A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt said he wouldn't have any objection to a referendum if public opinion demands one.

"The experts tell us we should have fluoridation," he said.

"I am certainly swayed by what the dentists say about it, but I can't say whether I would vote for it or against it."

"But if there is to be a referendum in December there should be some indication from the electorate fairly soon if people are to be able to vote intelligently," he added.

Oak Bay is the only one of the four incorporated areas which could go it alone on fluoridation if the move was blocked in one of the other municipalities, the water district commissioner said.

Oak Bay is fed by a single main, but the other three municipalities are connected by a complex network of lines which would mean they could not fluoridate independently.

Boy Catches Winged Cat

PINEVILLE, W. Va. (AP) — A 15-year-old boy has nabbed an odd freak—a cat with a wing-like growth.

Douglas Shelton said he was in the woods the other day when he noticed the animal tread by a dog.

The female cat has two wings, each about six inches long. They appear to be boneless but evidently cartilage gives them their shape.

Railways Need Trade

Senator Urges Ban On Freight Trucks

'Friendship' Visit Paid By Nikita

BUDAPEST, Hungary (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev arrived yesterday for an informal "visit of friendship."

Welcoming ceremonies were held to a minimum, to stress the informality of Khrushchev's first visit to Hungary since April 1955.

OTTAWA (CP)—A Saskatchewan Progressive Conservative senator said Thursday all freight business in Canada should go to the railways and that trucks should be banned from highways.

Senator Ralph Horner, a farmer, said in the Senate the railways are necessary in the Canadian economy and that they would be in a healthy position if they received all the freight business.

The railways should be given the freight business that rightfully belongs to them "and the highways should be left for the purposes for which they were designed—private passenger car travel."
